Selectmen reject move to drop power consultant

by Arlene Surprenant

In a surprise move, selectman Michael McCoy sought unsuccessfully Monday night to have his board terminate its contract with consultant Robert Patterson and work out "a good deal" with the Reading Municipal Light Department on its own. McCoy claimed his primary concern was Wilmington taxpayers, who have so far paid a reported $150,000 as the town continues its efforts to break with RMLD.

McCoy told fellow selectmen he felt it was "a foolish idea" to have the town start its own light department. He said after reviewing the figures and doing his "homework," he felt the creation of a municipal light department wouldn't be "feasible." He referred to the whole issue as "a high stakes poker game."

Selectmen reacted to McCoy's motion and comments with anger and disbelief. They chided McCoy for unwittingly releasing some figures which were brought up in executive session. They also pointed out that though the town has spent $150,000 to date, ratepayers have gotten back one million dollars in overcharges and, said Jim Stewart, "that's a damn good investment." Selectmen said if it weren't for the whole issue and a probe by the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce, Wilmington would not be getting back monies through overcharges and the reinstatement of in-lieu-of-tax payments.

Several selectmen pointed out that it was to the town's advantage to have the "best" information available to help with decisions and discussion at the negotiation table. They claimed the decision to leave Reading Light was based on information from Patterson and not based on "unknown numbers."

"We're not going to learn from Reading Light. We want to learn from people who have our interests at heart," said Chairman Bob Cain. Cain said he felt nothing would be the same between the town and Reading Light as far as "business as usual" in the future. He added he felt the town would end up buying power from RMLD or another source on a contract basis.

Selectman Bob Doucette lashed out at McCoy, claiming he had spent more time working on the Reading Light issue than McCoy had spent as a selectman. He said for McCoy to make such a motion was "totally ridiculous, totally uncalled for," and "out of order."

"I'm one hundred percent in favor of forming our own light department. I haven't seen a better option yet," Doucette maintained.

Cain went in another direction. He explained that selectmen were charged by two favorable town meeting votes to pursue the present course of action. The final decision, he said, was up to the voters. Stewart agreed, saying he felt the pursuit of a separate light department was feasible and he wouldn't agree to anything that would adversely affect the town.

McCoy's motion to terminate Patterson's contract failed for the lack of a second.

Nominations open

by Arlene Surprenant

Nomination papers for elected offices in Wilmington are now available at the Town Clerk's office at Wilmington Town Hall. Papers may be picked up in person or by a letter authorizing pick-up for candidates. The deadline for candidates to file papers is March 3.

This year's election will be held on Saturday, April 16. Candidates will be vying for seven open seats. Those seats are Bob Cain's three year seat on the board of selectmen, Michael Caira's three year seat for Moderator, Shirley Callan's and Bob Peterson's three year seats on the Wilmington School Committee, Dan Gillis' five year seat on the housing authority, Sidney Kaizer's five year seat on the redevelopment authority, and Kevin Sowyrda's three year seat on the Shawsheen Tech School Committee.

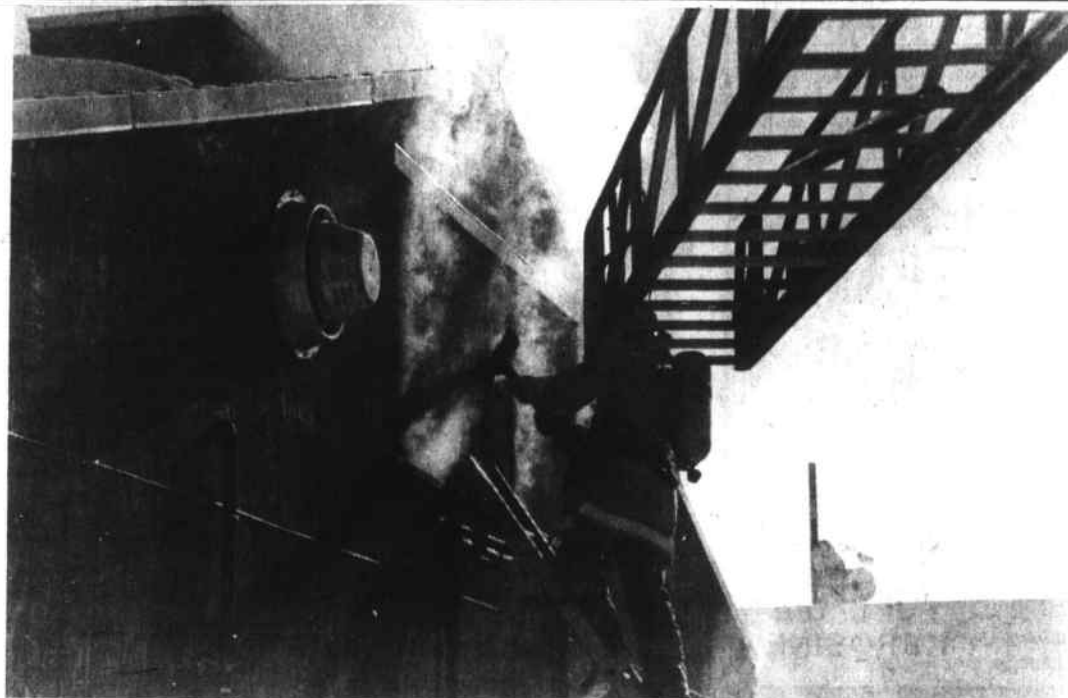

As of late Monday, five people have pulled papers. They are Cain for re-election to selectman, Callan for re-election to school committee, Sowyrda for re-election to Tech school committee, Andrea Paglia for election to the Wilmington School Committee, and Lester Chisholm for election to the Wilmington Housing Authority.

Fire at Papa Gino's

Two firefighters were injured on Monday morning battling a smoky fire in the attic of Papa Gino's on Main Street in Wilmington. Wilmington Deputy Chief Daniel Stewart and Tewksbury Lt. Lawrence Driscoll were treated and released at the Winchester Hospital. The fire, reported at 10:30 a.m., was caused by a faulty heating unit. The restaurant will remain closed for an undetermined length of time. Above, Firefighter Robert Vassallo cuts into the back of the building.

Does anyone want to run a carnival?

Will there be a carnival in Wilmington on the Fourth of July? Nobody really knows.

On Tuesday night, the Fourth of July Committee voted 5 to 4 to allow another organization to hold a carnival in conjunction with the town's celebration of the Fourth.

The catch, of course, is whether there is an organization willing to run the carnival and able to work out a notice.

Earlier, the committee had not held a carnival in 1988. The decision to cancel the carnival followed a disagreement between carnival operator Larry Cushing, Jr. and the committee. In addition, residents of the area around the town common had expressed strong opposition to the carnival being located in the neighborhood.

The committee will meet again on February 2 to entertain proposals from any organization interested in managing the carnival.

The motion to allow a carnival run by a separate group came from Jim Gillis, after the defeat of a motion to have the Fourth of July Committee run the carnival. Gillis and Jim Stewart spoke in favor of holding the carnival.

Chairman Jack Cushing, who is Larry Cushing's brother, did not vote on either motion.

Joan Searfoss presented the committee with a draft of a proposed contract which the committee could execute with the carnival operator.

Previously, the committee had used Larry Cushing's LMC Amusements on a "handshake" basis.

Gillis favored having Cushing again run the carnival, a proposal which met with stiff opposition from Bill Savosik, Joe Vieira and Paul Bova. Savosik cited problems that had occurred with pictures at the carnival last year. There was also a problem with letters which Larry Cushing had written to two organizations after the Fourth of July Committee had voted against the carnival. The letters indicated that Cushing would no longer support the organizations, because of how members had voted on the committee.

"As long as I'm on this committee," said Bova, "LMC will never be the carnival operator."

After the vote to allow another group to run a carnival, several questions were brought up. What if more than one group bid? What kind of proposal should be submitted?

Cushing said that an organization should indicate how many people they would have on hand. He also said that the group would have to be incorporated.

Stewart said that part of the agreement with the third party would be that the carnival operator would have to sign a contract with the Fourth of July Committee.

"Can we start planning other things instead?" asked Joan Maga.

Improvements proposed for four streets

by Arlene Surprenant

Property owners on four streets in town attended an informational hearing Monday night and told Wilmington selectmen they were prepared to pursue improvements to their roads. If the streets are accepted at the annual town meeting, they will fall under the betterment program where homeowners would share the construction costs according to the amount of frontage of their property.

Under the betterment program, residents pay for the cost of paving their road and making general improvements either in one lump sum or over a 20 year period. If they choose the latter option, residents are billed a portion of the total plus an eight percent finance charge each year in their tax bills.

The four streets -- Hanover Street, Randolph Road, Mystic Avenue, and Ainsworth Road -- were all reviewed separately by senior engineer Michael Roache. Roache works for the consulting engineering firm Fay, Spofford, and Thorndike, which prepared the preliminary cost estimates.

Roache stressed that all figures were preliminary based on a quick visit to the four unpaved streets. He pointed out that since Ainsworth Road involves an industrial zone, assessments would be higher. Roache addressed concerns brought up by Dennis Kane of Hanover Street, who sought to increase water flow to his property. He told Kane for $36 more a linear foot, water work could be added to construction costs.

Estimated assessments, which some selectmen called high and "sobering," ranged from $3,600 to $112,326 for individual property owners. Road lengths varied from 330 feet for Randolph Road to 1250 feet for Ainsworth Road.

Monday night's meeting was only considered a first step in the process to have the roads accepted by the town. Two more public hearings will be held by the Finance Committee and the planning board, scheduled tentatively for March 22 and 29, respectively. Voters will have a chance to accept the roads through a majority vote at the April 23 town meeting.

MBTA removes holding tank

by Arlene Surprenant
A septic holding tank on Mass Bay Transit Authority (MBTA) property on Salem Street has been removed by the transit authority. According to Health Director Greg Erickson, who initiated the action, the tank was dug up last Wednesday.

Erickson had sent a letter to the MBTA claiming the situation presented a nuisance. MBTA officials replied the tank was not a problem since it was not hooked up for sewerage. When Erickson wrote back that the tank could collapse whether it had anything in it or not and cited a state statute, the transit authority had it removed.

The property and plans for an on-site trailer was a continuing source of controversy last year. Upset neighbors and town officials said they would prefer the MBTA to use another site, such as the property located near Sweetheart Plastics on Rt.38. The whole issue was taken to court where the town lost, largely because the case falls under state regulations.

Erickson told the Town Crier Friday he was unsure what the MBTA plans to do now with the Salem Street site.

Air Force SSgt. Kenneth Dalton had a chance to chat with Vice President George Bush at a party Bush held last fall for Air Force personnel at Pease AFB. ## Wetlands decision delayed on condos

by Arlene Surprenant
The Wilmington Conservation Commission decided last Wednesday to review an engineering report on drainage and a thick, two volume Environmental Impact Statement before issuing an Order of Conditions on Shawsheen River Estates. Both reports were just completed and concern the 384 unit condominium project slated for the Hopkins Street - Reed Street area.

During the continued hearing on the project, engineer Erich Nitzsche explained the proponent, Third Avenue Realty Trust, was applying for approval to fill 2,000 square feet and alter 2,500 square feet of wetlands on site. He said there would be a "slight" increase in runoff into the Shawsheen River only during a ten-year storm. He maintained that the conservation administrator had said there was no reason why the project couldn't be approved right away.

Members thought otherwise.

They said they preferred to read the reports and have an engineer from Fay, Spofford, and Thorndike come to their next meeting to go over their comments and drainage calculations before they approve anything. Chairman Chester Bruce added that members must review the FST report before they could decide if the issues contained in it are "insignificant" or not.

Nitzsche told the commission there was a difference of opinion on the part of the town's consulting engineers (FST) and his own firm over some of the methodology used. As a result, FST concluded in its report that "the hydrologic analyses as submitted are not a true representation of existing and proposed site drainage conditions." FST recommended that revisions be made to the plans and computations submitted and peak runoff rates not be increased for the ten and 100 year storm.

In a cover letter Michael Roache, senior engineer for FST, said "it is our opinion that the issues raised in our review can and will be readily resolved."

In other business, the commission closed a continued wetland hearing on Chestnut Estates II. Members said if engineer Ken Miller didn't provide all necessary information, as requested, in 21 days, they would deny the application of North-eastern Development Corp.

Land proposed for duplex housing still under moratorium

by Arlene Surprenant
Proponents of a duplex project for affordable housing met a second time with members of the Wilmington Housing Authority Tuesday to try to address some of the questions raised in the past.

One of the main issues was how to obtain the town-owned site on Main Street near the North Woburn line. Another was how to hold the site until construction of the 75 duplexes got underway.

Proponents Arthur and Richard Dellaciprete of First Home Realty Trust said a top priority was to seek a special town meeting as soon as possible to have voters change the site's zoning to make it conform. They said they only saw three ways to hold the land: have the town turn it over to the housing authority, to a non-profit development corporation, or to themselves. These options will be subject to further study.

Selectman Jim Stewart was in attendance for part of the meeting. He pointed out the site is still under a moratorium and will not be free for development until April. Stewart asked the developers to bring their project forward in April in a competitive bid with other developers.

"Since we have the carrot to dangle," he said, referring to the town owned site, "let's dangle it before more than one person."

Stewart agreed with the majority of WHA members when he said, "this is the best proposal we've seen thus far from anybody." He did add, however, that the suggested time frame is unrealistic and they owed it to residents to allow the town's housing consultants to complete their long range planning so they can look at several affordable housing proposals.

The brothers pointed out they had the backing of several state officials who were ready to expedite the work. They said their first step will be to apply for the necessary permits and mortgage money available under the HOP program for first-time homebuyers. The first round of that money will be available March 1, they said. They said they also plan to meet with town selectmen and the Wilmington Water and Sewer Commission to introduce themselves and explain their proposal, which is 100 percent affordable.

Several current and past residents of the town were present to view the design and ask questions on who would get preference. They were told former and current residents would get first choice. However, it was pointed out, since the units would be state subsidized, they would probably have to follow some state guidelines as well.

Richard Dellaciprete claimed the manufacturer of their "top quality" two and three bedroom modular units was ready and it would be possible to obtain the homes eight weeks after an order was placed. He said it was viable that the project could be started in 1988, though Stewart had predicted it would take until next year to get it underway.

Richard stressed that the project would allow people to own both the land and home economically and the development would be "a family neighborhood and a place to raise your kids."

His brother Arthur agreed. "It's not going to be a slum; it's going to be a beautiful project," he said.

Houselots approved again by DEQE

A representative from DEQE told Wilmington Health Director Greg Erickson that two Shawsheen Avenue houselots met with his approval, following an on site visit last Wednesday. The lots are being developed by Jay Tighe.

Health board member Joseph Paglia had raised questions of possible groundwater contamination and flooding because of the excess amount of water on the two lots.

During the site visit, sand was being leveled on one of the lots. Erickson claimed that using sand as fill will slow water flow and help prevent any contamination problem.

Tighe, who said he was concerned about his reputation, as well as Hopkins Street resident Lester Chisholm were also present during the visit.

WILL YOUR TAXES GO UP!

Budget-balancing compromises may change the picture, but right now most tax experts believe that basic tax rates will not rise in the next year or two, though there was some talk of extending the 1987 rates another year. Instead, you can expect to see some new taxes, and a tightening of loopholes where they exist.

The Congressional consensus seems to be that selective surtaxes at the upper levels would generate less feedback than a general increase. The 5 percent surtax may be extended, or be turned into a 33 percent top bracket. There is also talk of taxes on furs, alcohol, tobacco and telephone calls. Tax benefits to estates and trusts may be limited.

What can you do now? Be careful about locking yourself into tax-advantaged investments; be sure that the investment is valid in itself. Leveraged partnerships have been burned by tax reform; single premium life insurance could lose its favorable tax status, too.

HAMMER TOES WHAT CAN BE DONE?

Hammer toes are small-toe deformities that occur in the little joints of the toe. Their cause can be attributed to inherited bone and joint structures and are aggravated by shoe gear.

A hammer toe is usually a "claw-like" deformity of the first joint of the smaller toes. The joint "buckles" upwards and rubs in the shoes. The rubbing irritates the skin and the joint and causes a painful swollen joint along with a corn over the joint.

Correction of this deformity can be simple releasing of the tendons, to releasing of the tendons in combination with removal of a small piece of bone.

These procedures are done under local anesthesia on a out-patient basis in either the office or hospital.

Man dies as fire guts house

An elderly man died last Thursday afternoon when fire gutted his debris-strewn home. Edward Lipp, 78, lived alone in an old farmhouse at the end of Pomfret Road on the Tewksbury-Wilmington line.

The fire, reported at 4 p.m., was started by a faulty chimney connection for a wood stove, according to Wilmington Fire Chief Dan Wandell. The fire started in a front room of the house and spread to the second floor.

Lipp's body was found in the rear of the house. He was pronounced dead at the scene by a state medical examiner. The body was removed to the Lowell General Hospital.

Lipp had operated a farm for many years. Over the years, he accumulated a large quantity of junk, much of which was piled in the house.

He still kept livestock, and there were two cattle in an adjacent field at the time of the fire. On Tuesday, the Wilmington animal control officer was called in to capture the cattle. She put out feed for them, and went back on Wednesday to confine them. At that time, William Lipp said he would keep and care for the cattle.

Drainage of concern near Lake Street bridge

Concerns over drainage and work progress caused state and town officials to hold a recent meeting with abutters of the Lake Street Bridge. A new bridge is currently under construction.

According to Conservation Administrator Libby Sabounjian, abutters felt there was too much water in the adjacent Middlesex Canal, which could lead to flooding and drainage problems. During the meeting, said Sabounjian, some neighbors claimed residents downstream were filling the canal with leaves and other debris, which could be contributing to the problem. Sabounjian promised this would be looked into by the Conservation Commission and told the Town Crier the state is currently putting together figures to prove there will be no flooding during a storm.

Sabounjian said catch basins and the bridge itself will impact the nearby wetlands. But because the bridge is funded under legislation that exempts the project from the Wetlands Protection Act, all the Conservation Commission can do is "formally request what we would normally request, like siltation control," Sabounjian added.

Another concern is the culvert under Lake Street. The state DPW may replace it since it is not absolutely straight, said Sabounjian. However, town officials must obtain the necessary environmental permits if this is to be done.

Selectmen oppose new Butters Row bridge

by Arlene Surprenant
At the request of vocal Butters Row homeowners, who said they feared increased traffic and a change in their neighborhood's character should the Butters Row Bridge be enlarged, the Wilmington Board of Selectmen voted unanimously to send a letter to the state opposing construction of a new bridge. The motion was made by Michael McCoy and discussed at length among selectmen who, initially, were against locking the board into taking a stand right away.

Playing a large part in the discussion was a request by Michael Matt, Executive Director of the Wilmington Redevelopment Authority. Matt had asked abutters to give WRA consultants a chance to look at all options and traffic in the town center area before making a decision on the Butters Row Bridge. He reportedly said that though Butters Row is not really under WRA jurisdiction, it was important in any plans concerning town center.

Selectmen Chairman Robert Cain tried several times to push through an addendum to the motion. He said he was in favor of asking the state to put the bridge on hold until the feasibility study on town center was complete. Jim Stewart agreed though he felt that, in the end, residents should have the final word on what happens in their own neighborhood.

In a letter, abutter Austin Rounds suggested that selectmen tell the state to place the bridge on hold until more information was available. His wife Maureen said there may be other alternatives to enlarging the bridge to a width of 28 feet, which was the minimum the state would allow. She was also eloquent on preserving their rural neighborhood.

"I fear the loss of something that will never be replaced. What we're trying to hold onto is a quality of life that is very precious to us," she said.

Dan Ballou supported McCoy's efforts. He claimed that even if town center was changed, there would always be problems and it would most likely be out of date as soon as work was complete.

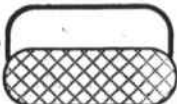

"I don't care what they do to it, it's still going to be a problem. We have to be thinking in the direction of how we're going to preserve our neighborhoods," Ballou said.

When one resident asked if the state can replace the bridge whether they wanted it or not, Jim Stewart replied, "it's their bridge." However, others said town input could influence the decision.

Selectmen reportedly have a 30 to 60 day comment period on the bridge from last month's DPW public hearing.

WHEN YOUR BUYER HAS A HOME TO SELL

Prospective buyers often have homes they must sell in order to purchase a new home. Sellers, on the other hand, may be reluctant to accept any offer that is contingent on the sale of another property. If you receive such an offer, there are ways to structure the sale that can minimize the seller's risks.

First, you might put a limit on the amount of time the buyers have to accept an offer on their property. You can also keep your home on the market. If a second offer comes in, you may be able to reserve the right to refuse the first conditional offer unless the contingencies can be met within forty-eight or seventy-two hours.

Many sales that start out as contingent offers work well for the sellers. Your purchaser is not going to be in the best bargaining position and is less likely to ask for concessions on price or other terms. Each situation is different, however, and before you accept a contingent offer, you should go over the pros and cons of the particular situation with your Realtor.

If you are considering a move, contact the professionals at Kelley & Kompany. Call us at 658-4171 or stop by our office at 11 Middlesex Avenue (Suite #10) in Wilmington.

Frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

Wilmington, like any other community, has its share of problems. There's the issue of housing, a debate with Reading Light, and traffic to last a life time. But when you consider what the residents of Billerica Street have had to contend with in nearby Lowell, it puts it all in perspective, and makes our problems seem somewhat small in comparison.

Meet the residents of 89 - 103 Billerica Street, Lowell, Massachusetts. Their problem is a lot bigger than traffic, or what's happening to their water and sewer rates. One day last June, the residents of these four cozy duplexes found an ominous sign posted in their neighborhood by the local health authority. In big, dark letters it warned the residents to quickly dig up their vegetable gardens because of hazardous toxic waste in the soil.

That was the beginning of the nightmare for these middle income homeowners. Investigated by city and state officials, the neighborhood was found to be unsafe, because it had been developed on nothing less than a former dump site.

That's where Naureen Danely came into the picture. Naureen heads up the Greater Lowell Environmental Campaign, and says that the only solution now for the families at Billerica Street is, "nothing short of relocation".

Naureen is the feisty type, and not known for being shy. She and her group work actively in monitoring local companies that work with hazardous materials, so she was a natural advocate for the citizens at Billerica Street, Lowell. When their case became public, Naureen began to forge a relationship with numerous officials on their behalf, including the Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE).

Danely, now a familiar face at Lowell City Hall, says that DEQE moved rapidly in the Billerica Street case. "They agreed so much, it scares me", says Danely, with a sound of satisfaction in her voice.

But the bottom line for Danely, and certainly the families on Billerica Street who have found that they bought their first home on a dump site, has been immediate relocation. That's been the real bone of contention between them and DEQE.

Brendan Fleming supports the solution they've all waited for, which could well set a precedent for municipal government. At a meeting of the Lowell City Council this week, Councillor Fleming is ready to move that the city purchase 89 - 103 Billerica Street, at what the fair market value would be before the dump site was discovered.

In an interview with the Town Crier Tuesday morning, Fleming said that the city was the only hope the homeowners had left, and without someone stepping in, the families would own property that is now virtually worthless, and dangerous to their lives. Trying to put himself in their shoes, Fleming said, "What would I do if all my earnings went into a home, only to find it's on a dump, and worthless?"

If it does set a precedent, that might be just as well. Realtors aren't too likely to be looking for listings on Billerica Street these days, and meanwhile there are children and parents who's lives are well worth setting a precedent over.

Referring to his proposal to buy the homes at Billerica Street, Councillor Fleming said, "We just put 8 million dollars into one of the historic museums in Lowell. If we can do that, we must have room in our hearts to help families".

25 years ago

The January 17, 1963 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

A special town meeting scheduled for Monday would include two articles regarding a school on Woburn Street - one would ask for an appropriation of $24,150 out of 1963 taxes to purchase land and prepare preliminary plans and one would ask for the sum of $18,650 to purchase land of the former Sidelinker Estate - about 15.5 acres.

For the nominal fee of 25 cents, Sabin oral vaccine, heretofore available only to children, would be available to adults with the first clinic set for February 3 at the Wildwood School.

State DPW officials were investigating the damages to the Town of Wilmington due to the passing of the new Route 125 through a portion of the watershed at the North Wilmington Pumping Station.

After nearly 25 years of service on town boards, (21 years on the School Committee), Ernest Crispo of Hopkins Street announced his retirement.

Philip Tupper of Linda Road, former WHS track star was awarded one of six letters given to members of Northeastern's successful 1962 track team.

Pictured were the heads of the committee for the football banquet - Chairman Eddie Forrest, Walter Gustus and Anthony Cesari, all of Tattersall Chapter DAV.

Atty. Roland Wood of Lockwood Road, tossed his hat into the political ring by taking out papers for nomination for selectman; others seeking nomination to the board included: Eddie Forrest of Clyde Avenue, chairman of the WHA; Donald Kidder would not be a candidate saying he had served two terms and it was time to step aside. Kidder complimented Selectwoman Wavie Drew saying she was a great help and source of information during his service on the board.

Ralph Orne, fireman USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Orne of Beverly Avenue, was serving on the destroyer Perry in the Mediterranean.

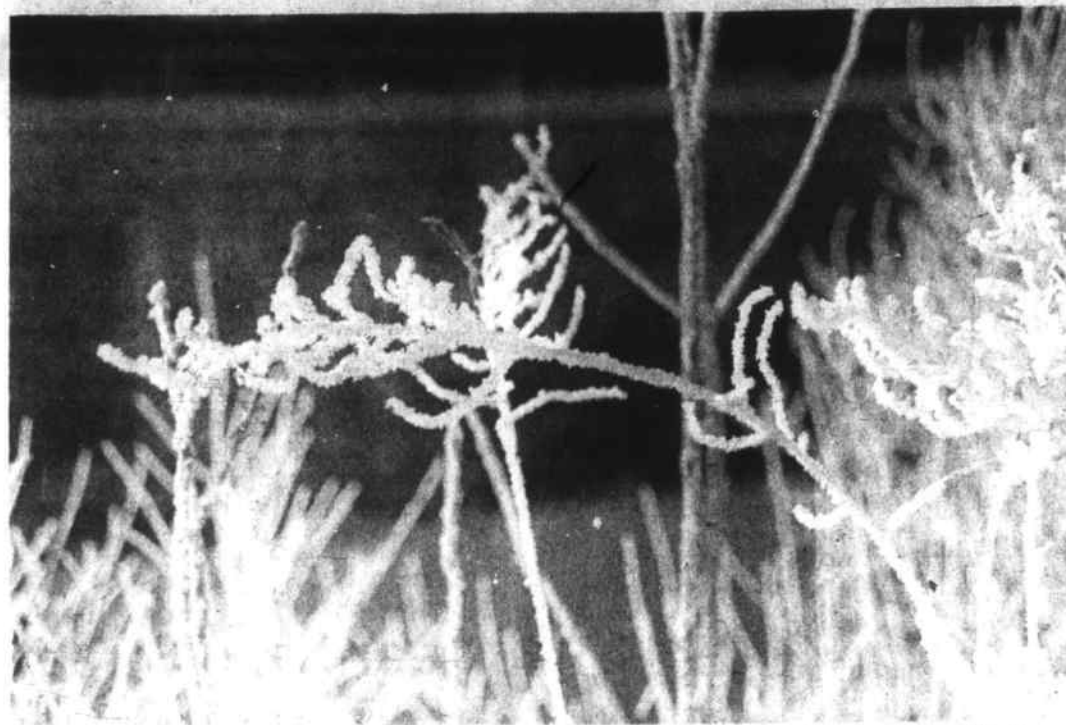

A four year old, six room ranch with fireplace livingroom, dining room, three bedrooms, screened porch on a 3/4 acre pine setting was offered for sale at $18,900.

John Steeves, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Steeves of Edwards Avenue was undergoing basic recruit training at the Great Lakes Naval Training Center.

Officers Charles Janerico and Robert Shelley of the Wilmington Police Department were commended by the Board of Selectmen for the aid they gave Town Manager Fred Staples of Salem, N.H. who was stranded on Route 93 Christmas Eve.

Ed Kelley of Shawshen Avenue was surprise candidate for the School Committee. A 1934 graduate of WHS, he was no stranger to public service having been employed by the Federal government.

John McCann of Lawrence Steet and Thomas Reidy of Glen Road took out papers requesting nomination for Housing Authority. Elias' Country Store advertised pork roast at 29 cents a pound; pork loins, 49 cents a pound and corned beef brisket, 69 cents a pound.

Winter woolies

It's rightly called "Hoar Frost," but it makes for lovely winter scenery nonetheless. The Merrimack River was warmer than the bitterly cold air on Monday morning, causing a mist to rise up from the water. The frigid mist quickly gathered on plants and trees, leaving behind a fuzzy white frosting along the riverbank.

The Humble Farmer

The AA meeting is upstairs

I never watch TV sit-coms. Such silly, childish things could never happen to an adult out here in the woods.

But visit most any busy metropolis in Massachusetts and you might discover that many sophisticated natives do indeed enjoy running around half cocked and confused.

It was Saturday the last that I sampled this big city thinking when I spoke at a hospital in Methuen.

I arrived to find a sweet white haired lady adding the finishing decorative touches to her banquet hall. Everything was bright and shiny and colorful. I seldom see anyone take such pains with hall decorations and place settings.

Friendly, outgoing person that I am, I oozed over and told her that someone had done a wonderful job decorating the hall.

She said, "The AA meeting is upstairs."

I thanked her and put my handouts and other gear beneath the speaker's podium. Then I went out to the men's room, combed my hair, brushed my teeth, straightened my plastic name tag that said, "The Humble Farmer, St. George, Maine" and made sure that the four inch ribbon hanging from it that said "Speaker" was straight.

In other words, I did what any speaker does when he's gearing up to go to work.

Then I went back to the banquet hall and shook hands and introduced myself to those doctors and hospital trustees who were arriving.

One of the waitresses came out of the kitchen and said to me, "The AA meeting is upstairs. A security man is going to unlock the door so you can get in."

I thanked her. Pretty soon a young security guard shows up at my elbow and wants to know who I am. I tell him I'm Robert Skoglund and point to the four-inch ribbon on my jacket that says, "Speaker." He looks at my handouts and goes over to the corner and says "10-4" and other police things into his walkie talkie.

He comes back to me several times and asks questions and I finally figure out that the sweet white haired lady and the kitchen staff and the security staff and another young woman (who might have been rather attractive if she didn't have colored goo rubbed around her eyes) and her friends at the front desk all know I belong at the AA meeting, probably because I'm sober, and all seem quite annoyed that I won't go up there.

Well, the more the guard talks into his walkie talkie the less friendly he sounds when he asks me questions, and I don't get a chance to greet the doctors or trustees and other new friends at the door so I can build up my good will account - so to speak - like I enjoy doing.

He wants to know who invited me to the party but I'm getting somewhat rattled and I shamefully admit that I can't remember. I explain that it's probably the president of the hospital, but I meet several hundred people doing two or three talks a week and my IQ is low.

At last another guard shows up and I'm asked to accompany them to some security office upstairs.

Now about needing two guards. I have since learned that showing up sober at a hospital party in urban Massachusetts is solid grounds for suspicion. But although I've never won any beauty contests neither do children run, screaming when they meet me on the street.

Was I dressed in the comfortable clothes I wear around home - looking like an untouchable from the Black Hole of Calcutta? Don't be silly. I'm a professional entertainer and was dressed accordingly.

Listen. Pants, like new, a gift from a professor of music at Colby College. Just washed and absolutely free from wear. Conservative shirt from a sea captain friend who has lived in Hong Kong and Cyprus. He put on weight and I got it. Real silk tie bought in Korea by an internationally respected psychiatrist friend on her way home from a conference in China. Suspenders left in a house I rented to Tony Glavin, Harvard graduate, former editor at Down East magazine and writer of books. Last, but not least, a nice jacket with an impressive West Indies label, bought especially for me at a lawn sale in Camden by the Widder Adams - who spends her winters on an island that begins with a "T" somewhere near Cuba. All I had to do was let down the sleeves.

Can there be anything wrong or suspicious about a man in an outfit assembled by people of such wealth and erudition?

On top of that, please know that I had bathed and shaved within the previous six hours. My fingernails were clean.

But I was taken up behind the front desk for questioning as a suspicious character. I offered my driver's license when asked for identification. Somehow, unseen by me, everything I'd stowed beneath the podium had also been brought up. One of the guards was digging through my envelopes of handouts, obviously without reading or understanding any of it.

"This is your stuff," he said accusingly. In the office the tone of voice used by my questioners became - yup, hard and, at best, impolite. I felt like a weak chicken I'd seen pecked by all the others, simply because she was down. Knowing I'd get a Massachusetts sit-com, column out of their unwillingness to believe that the president of the hospital had hired me to entertain his staff and the trustees and that I wasn't there for the AA meeting, I was somewhat amused. But I started to soak the armpits on my shirt, as the last person to use such a nasty tone of voice to me was the 17-year-old Massachusetts boy who rammed my rear bumper at a stop sign in Melrose.

I put on my rubbers and went out to my truck - accompanied by a fuzzy cheeked guard - and produced a copy of the letter that said I was supposed to give a talk to trustees and doctors. The woman at the front desk peered out through the goo around her eyes and said it was a hoax. The guard had brought up a pile of AA leaflets along with my handouts and he fondled them accusingly. "This is your stuff," he said.

I denied it. Yes. I finally gave my talk. At the last minute, someone far enough up the chain of command to know what was going on rushed in to claim my pure and well-dressed body. The staff apologized as only Massachusetts people can. Of course, folks who run around half cocked have had more practice at it than most of us.

When I told Gramp Wiley the story, he cackled and said, "Never correct anyone - let 'em make fools of themselves."

But my psychologist friend Addler simply laughed and said, "It's obvious you have an image problem."

League of Women voters looks at Wilmington selectmen

This is the second in a series of articles presented by the League of Women Voters of Wilmington in preparation for its "Meet Your Town Officials" reception to be held in the spring. This event will give the citizens of Wilmington the opportunity to meet and talk with their officials in an informal setting.

The League hopes that these articles will give the public enough general information regarding the function and responsibilities of each office to make them more comfortable discussing issues with town officials attending the event. Next week - the redevelopment authority.

The Board of Selectmen of the Town of Wilmington consists of five members elected at large on a non-partisan basis for a three year term. Their terms overlap so that no more than two terms expire each year. The selectmen are not compensated for their duties but receive reimbursement for expenses which amount to approximately $500 per year. A member of the Board of Selectmen is ineligible to hold any other elective or appointive office during his term or to participate in any official act concerning contracts in which they have any interest, except as permitted by state law.

The functions of the Board of Selectmen include appointment of the Town Manager, Town Counsel, Town Accountant, the Board of Registrars of Voters, and the Board of Appeals. The selectmen call town meetings, prepare warrants for those meetings, issue a variety of licenses and permits and layout streets for acceptance as public ways. The board works in cooperation with the town manager and other boards and officials of the town, occasionally having joint meetings at the need arises.

The Board of Selectmen meets on the second and fourth Mondays of each month in Room 9 of the Town Hall. Meetings are open to the public. An agenda is prepared on the Thursday or Friday prior to each meeting.

Any citizen wishing to take an item to the board should contact the chairman of the board or the Town Manager to request placement on the agenda during the week preceding the meeting.

Sewer plans in the works

The Board of Water and Sewer Commissioners of Wilmington, last Thursday, took the first steps toward the construction of a sewer interceptor, east of Interstate Route 93.

They instructed engineer Emile Hamwey of the firm of Fay, Spofford & Thorndike to prepare the plans.

The interceptor will be from Lowell Street and Woburn Street to Concord Street, where it will cross under Route 93. It will then turn north, going through Hathaway Acres, and eventually, as it was discussed last Thursday, end at or near the Brown's Crossing Pumping Station.

The expected cost of preparing the plans will be $400,000. The Commissioners will prepare a warrant article, for the Annual Town Meeting, asking for an appropriation.

The commissioners also learned that the sewer in Cedar Street, leading to the Deming Way Housing for the Elderly project, has been completed, and is now connected to the pumping station at that project. The cost was about $160,000.

The construction of the sewer to Deming Way is a part of the planned project of increasing the number of homes in the Housing for the Elderly project.

Eighth graders visit high school

In an attempt to demystify the high school experience for Wilmington's eighth graders, the administration, faculty and Student Council of Wilmington High School have joined forces to produce a series of "visits."

Two groups of young people have already spent a day at the high school, and the third, and final group is scheduled for Friday, January 15.

The day is geared toward introducing the eighth graders to Wilmington High School's exciting new physical plant, and to the wide variety of course offerings and extracurricular activities that will be available to them as freshmen.

The schedule for the January 15 orientation will be similar to that of the previous two visits. The day will begin with a 9:15 a.m. meeting in the cafeteria, where the eighth graders will be served donuts and juice by members of the student council. After a welcome by Mr. Fleming, Principal of Wilmington High School, the students will be introduced to the department heads, who will give overviews of the courses that are available in each discipline. Also offering information will be a representative from Guidance and from the Student Council.

The eighth graders will then be paired with freshmen guides, who will give them individual tours of the building. The town of Wilmington should be proud of its high school complex, with its new library, gymnasium, expanded classroom space, state-of-the-art shop area.

The eighth grade students will attend classes and go to lunch with their guides from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. At 1 p.m., they will have a final meeting in the library where a question and answer session will be held.

In a survey conducted after the first two visits, a number of students commented on how impressed they were with the library and the gym. There were also many comments about "the great salad bar" and "the awesome French fries" in the cafeteria. Science was a big hit with many of the students. As one young girl wrote, "We worked with rocks and minerals. It was exciting!"

When asked what they had learned about the high school, many commented on the size of the building, and the many different courses that were available. As one student commented: "It's a great school, and I learned that it's not so scary after all."

When asked for suggestions to improve the visit, the almost universal response was to let them stay longer. One student suggested that we "have the kids go to the high school for a week." Starting next September, they can stay for four years!

Factory Road filling filed -- finally

by Arlene Surprenant

Saying this was basically a filing "after the fact," engineer Erich Nitzsche filed a Notice of Intent with the Wilmington Conservation Commission last Wednesday on behalf of developer Jay Tighe. The filing was to allow Tighe to fill a roadway for a home in land subject to flooding.

Nitzsche explained that the work on Factory Street off Butters Row had already begun. In the process, he added, part of the buffer zone had been disturbed and would be restored.

Nitzsche said he plans to fill 4,960 square feet in a flood plain and provide three times the necessary compensation on a second piece of property formerly owned by Joe App and now owned by Tighe.

Commission members had several problems with the proposal and eventually asked the proponent to continue the hearing to February 17 to address them, despite the fact that Conservation Administrator Libby Sabounjian, who was not present due to illness, favored denial.

One of the problems centered around an alleged violation. Members said 8,500 square feet of land had been altered without the knowledge of their board. Tighe assumed full blame, saying he was responsible for having the road hot topped. He maintained, however, that he stopped at the end of the second of four lots because he wanted to stay clear of the wetlands.

Ray Lepore, who owns two of the four lots under discussion, took after the board and town officials who allowed the road to be paved.

"What the hell happened here? Somewhere along the line, someone should have come in and said, 'Hey hold it,'" he said.

During the discussion, questions arose as to the accuracy of FEMA maps, which delineate the flood plain and land elevations. The same issue had been brought up by Nitzsche in the past.

Another problem developed over the old Middlesex Canal, which is shown on FEMA maps as a restriction which could impede water flow.

Nitzsche and environmental consultant Paul Lalito maintained the canal was a "limited" or "insignificant" restriction which wouldn't stop the flow of water or cause flooding. They maintained the board was making a strict interpretation of the maps and, in fact, the canal bed isn't even obvious by the compensation area.

The commission went along with member Don Ugolini, who said the only thing he was going by was regulations that say there can be no restriction in the area. Members also said they would walk the site before their February meeting.

Duke signs voke aid bill

by Arlene Surprenant

The Voke Aid Bill (Senate Bill 1826) was formally signed by Governor Michael Dukakis on Wednesday afternoon, along with several other educational bills. The ceremony took place at Woburn High School in view of some of the Massachusetts legislators who helped move the bill through both legislative bodies, representatives of several state vocational schools, and members of the media.

The bill will increase the amount of state aid now going to Massachusetts vocational schools. It will also significantly decrease the assessments of member towns who have to support local vocational schools.

For instance, according to Kevin Sowyrda of the Shawsheen Tech School Committee, Wilmington's assessment is now expected to increase by only seven and a quarter percent under the Tech's proposed budget and the new bill. Without the bill's passage, Wilmington could have been expected to pay an increase of 20 percent.

Sowyrda called the outcome "fantastic" and "the best news in 1988 for the five member towns" of Shawsheen Tech.

Coincidence

Larz reports that here is a bit of coincidence in a recent change of address.

Sylvia Bowman of High Street, Wilmington, for about 25 years the clerk of the Wilmington Water and Sewer Commissioners, and has chalked about 30 years of service at the town hall.

Last year Sylvia retired. She and her husband Charles had built a second home in Dunbarton, New Hampshire, which they used as a weekend retreat.

The board of registrars in Wilmington, as in every other community in Mass. has a list of residents, giving home addresses and occupation of all adults who live in the town. For her last year in Wilmington Sylvia Bowman showed, as her occupation: Free at Last.

Now the lady lives in New Hampshire. She moved to that state a few weeks ago. This is to possibly remind the lady that the state slogan of New Hampshire is: Live Free or Die.

The home on High Street is now occupied by her son John Stanley and his wife Shirley.

Cancer library returns to Wilmington

Cancer Control Society and National Health Federation have announced the recent return to Wilmington of their public health library. The facility had moved temporarily to Dracut in December 1986.

The new location is 37 Lowell St. (Rte. 129) next to the Colonial Mall. Area residents are cordially invited to visit the library for hard-to-find information on natural protocols being used with success around the world, but which are not readily available in the United States for prevention and control of degenerative diseases.

President of the Boston Chapter of C.C.S./N.H.F. Warren Newhouse of Wilmington has appeared with State Representative Jim Miceli on cable television in 1986 explaining the many options to cancer patients which are not currently accepted by the orthodox medical community. Those options for the most part are based on dietary, lifestyle and environmental causes of degenerative conditions, which in recent years have come under close scrutiny as billions of tax dollars have failed to find cures with increasingly expensive treatment protocols.

During 1986 and 1987, Newhouse has testified at Health Care Committee hearings in the Massachusetts State House on such controversial bills as Patients' Rights to Know about optional therapies, The Dietician's Bill and the Food Irradiation Bill. He was present in the Governor's office when the State Proclamation was signed designating September 1985 as Wholistic Health and Nutrition Awareness Month.

The 1985 proclamation brought out that the Commonwealth of Massachusetts is the center for preventive health care and cited wholistic organizations, hospitals, educational foundations, publications, natural food stores and community coops as being instrumental in alerting the public to the importance of good nutrition. The wholistic health movement was cited for leading the trend toward better eating and the public's awareness that individuals can take responsibility for their own "wellness" through nutrition, exercise and stress management.

The C.C.S./N.H.F. official pointed out that the American Heart Association has for 15 years acknowledged that heart disease, the number one cause of death in the U.S., is directly related to dietary consumption of saturated fats and cholesterol and has urged "changes in diet to prevent or control hyperlipidemia, obesity, hypertension and diabetes."

The National Academy of Sciences in 1982 and the American Cancer Society in 1984 have called upon the general public to reduce cancer risks by reducing fat intake, alcohol and smoked foods and increasing high fiber foods - fruits, vegetables and whole grains. They also recommended foods rich in vitamins A and C.

The American Diabetes Association has recommended reducing animal fats and simple sugars as well as eating a diet high in complex carbohydrates to reduce the risk of diabetes and diabetic complications.

In summary, Newhouse applauded the medical field for its movement toward focussing on prevention of disease instead of treatment of symptoms. "It must be stated," he said, "that for more than 40 years, hundreds of medical doctors and wholistic practitioners have been crying in the wilderness for these same measures to be applied in turning the tide of physical and mental degeneration of America." He added, "these same professionals have, however, been ridiculed and harassed for their beliefs and research findings. This suppression of truths was the original reason for the founding of Cancer Control Society and the National Health Federation."

sponsors qualified speakers, conducts seminars and workshops and offers referrals for patients and families to wholistic hospitals, doctors and other professionals. Informational services and referrals are offered for no charge by phoning 658-4673 or by stopping at the library at 37 Lowell Street by appointment. A packet of information is available by mail for $4 which includes lists of healed patients, nutrition minded doctors and hospitals and dietary guidelines for prevention of disease.

The chapter president also urges the general public to take advantage of the many fine public workshops offered by the Regional Health Center in Wilmington and at other local hospitals and health organizations. "If we in the health field can raise the awareness of the public, only then can we expect to get them involved with the self-inflicted damage to their health and hand in hand we can reverse the downward spiral of American health ratings," he concluded.

Information on C.C.S./N.H.F. library and other functions may be requested by calling Lisa DiChiara at 658-4673. Nights and weekends please leave messages on recording.

Curriculum changes at Tewksbury Memorial High

by Bill Conlon

The curriculum of Tewksbury Memorial High School will see a few additions in the fall, after the school committee last week voted to approve a number of recommendations made by TMHS Principal Bill DiGregorio.

The approved recommendations, as presented by DiGregorio, are as follows:

Computer Applications will be presented so that students may about learn some of the computer software available, and how to put that software to use.

"There seems to be a growing need for computer software and its use," DiGregorio told the board. The new course will require a minimum signup of 15 students.

Business Math II will serve to "intensify the present program," and a minimum signup of 15 will be required for the course to begin.

Personal Typing II will allow students to expand their keyboard skills. DiGregorio said the course will be a follow-on to existing typing courses, with an emphasis on college-level typing. Minimum signup of 15 students.

Writing Workshop will see students keep a writing journal, so that they may write "freely but not recklessly," the principal said. Journal entries will be reviewed and later graded, with points given for the number of entries.

Roman Mythology would give students a richer understanding of Greek and Roman mythology, and how the earlier beliefs affect today's philosophies. DiGregorio said that mythology is currently addressed briefly in other courses, but no real emphasis is provided. A course in mythology will also be of aid to students wishing to pursue liberal arts studies in college. Minimum of 15 students needed.

Technology will give students a fuller understanding of the forces behind some of today's technology, including the part played by force, work, energy, radiation, transformers, optical systems and time constraints. The course is intended to provide a bridge, DiGregorio said, "between the shop teacher and the science teacher." No minimum signup is required, but the high school principal asked for a $2,000 startup fund to provide material for the course.

Marine Biology would be offered to juniors and seniors, to address a growing interest in this field. No lab would be required, by a field trip was asked. The school committee agreed to support the course, provided that any field trips would first have to be approved by the committee. The minimum signup for the course would be 18 students.

Other course recommendations made by DiGregorio were not acted upon immediately.

A requirement that all students must successfully complete four years of PhysEd was discussed, but DiGregorio asked that the board hold off on voting the proposal until Director David Marcus could make a presentation. The board agreed to hold off on the decision.

Another recommendation set aside by the committee was a request clubs for Future Teachers, Future Business, Future Computer, and Future Homemaker. Paid faculty advisors for the clubs were requested. While the school board agreed in principle to the requested clubs, no final decisions were made last week.

Tree was full of honey

Construction of a new sewer, for Jacobs Street in Wilmington had a distinct but private reward.

About 25 pounds of honey was found in a pine tree which had to be cut down. An employee of the contractor collected the honey, in a plastic receptacle, and took the honey home.

The Jacobs Street sewer is being constructed under the Betterment Plan, in which the ultimate users contribute to the cost of construction.

There was much discussion before an agreement was reached, one reason being that the street was not in conformance with the plans for the area.

The pine tree, where the honey was found, seemed to be private property but was in the locus of Jacobs Street. A pair of squirrels had been living in the tree about five years ago when the bees took over and evicted them.

Volunteers needed

Volunteers are needed for the "Plants Go To School" Program which will open up the fascinating world of plants to fourth grade students in the Boston area.

The purpose of "Plants Go To School" is to give children the opportunity to develop an understanding of how plants function as well as the important role that plants play in our daily lives. Children will learn first hand the satisfaction of planting a seed and watching it grow. For many this will trigger the beginning of scientific questioning as well as an awakening of ecological awareness. In an urban area especially, it is extremely important to expose children to the green world.

Volunteers who join this exciting program will gain personal satisfaction from knowing that they are playing an important role in the education of our youth.

Training sessions for volunteers will be held on two Thursdays, Feb. 11 and 18 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Training will include the basics of botany and horticulture, step by step instructions for discussions and experiments, and an orientation to the role of the volunteer in the classroom.

If interested in participating call Debi Hogan, Children's Program Coordinator at Mass. Horticultural Society, 300 Mass. Ave., Boston, Mass. 02115, 536-9280.

Computers to teach geometry

Mrs. Dolores Sullivan and Mrs. Elizabeth Papik, faculty members of the mathematics department of Tewksbury Memorial High School, are revising the plain geometry course curriculum.

The program is designed for the average college bound student. When funds were made available from Horace Mann grants, they with the encouragement of Bryce Collins, their department chairperson, conducted a survey of several neighboring school systems. They attempted to determine the types of published software materials being emphasized in the mathematics classrooms.

Mrs. Sullivan and Mrs. Papik began organizing topics for the course. They developed numerous worksheets and transparencies which are an integral part of the proposed course. In the past, each teacher has had to spend many hours developing his/her own supplemental mathematical worksheets, regardless of the text used. Unification of materials and unified examinations are two objectives of Mrs. Sullivan and Mrs. Papik's project.

A second aspect of the curriculum development project was to incorporate the computer into the teaching of geometry. This will be done using the Geometric Supposer software, which is currently being used in area schools. Video tapes and backline markers, purchased under the Horace Mann grants, will be used in conjunction with the software.

To assist the faculty members with their program, the members of the In-school Council, Chapter 188, relayed funds for an overhead micro byte projection system. This will allow Mrs. Sullivan and Mrs. Papik, the opportunity to display computer programs on an overhead screen for viewing by the entire class.

The ultimate goals of the project were: 1) a more comprehensive mathematical curriculum which will provide the student with a stronger and fuller geometry background that can be used in further mathematics courses and that will lead to improved SAT scores 2) a readily available package of resources and supplemental materials for the teacher that can be used regardless of the current text and 3) the introduction of the computer to the classroom.

William J. DeGregorio, principal of TMHS, says "eventually computer assisted learning will be reinforced at the high school if a supervised computer center is made available or is established and funded."

Wildwood School

Parents of the Wildwood School and their children have been treated these past three months with ever-growing issues of the "Wildwood Street Journal." It has grown from seven pages to a 26-page December issue. The Journal includes a table of contents, book reviews, contest, fun pages, students of the month and special features.

The school is very proud of the staff: Lindsay Currier, Eric Frost, Chris Merrill, Melissa Hurley, Jane Carroll, Heather McDonald, Sue Estabrooks, Kelly Curtin, Billy Lemos, Beth Burke, Beth Nelson, David Major, Kristi Lyman, Andrea Feizidis, Jeff DeFilippo, and Jamie Austin. As advisor, Brian Smith's guidance is very evident. He demands and receives a high quality of effort from his staff.

Congratulations to all, as we eagerly await the next edition.

Gerri Abrams, elementary computer education teacher, taught in the classroom 14 years prior to her tenure at the Wildwood this year. She received a CAGS degree in computer education in 1985 at Lesley College. A major goal of her year, which is almost complete, is to enable every fourth and fifth grade student to write comfortably using the computer.

Students in these grades will also be using "Voyage of the Mimi" materials and be exposed to databases. Grades K-three are using software appropriate to their curriculum. Ms. Abrams is very pleased with the interest and enthusiasm shown by students, teachers and principal concerning computer education. She loves her new job. Much to her credit, her students and colleagues love her enthusiasm and energy. Welcome to Ms. Abrams!

The date of the next PAC meeting is Tuesday, January 19 at 9:30 a.m. in the all purpose room.

Thursday, December 17 and Friday, December 18, Jehan Clements, a professional story teller, musician, writer/illustrator of original stories for children once again visited the Woburn Street School, as one of Santa's helpers and dressed in full Christmas regalia.

Mr. Clements held the children spell bound with music and his original story "The Boy Who Did Not Believe in Santa Claus." This PAC sponsored two day program designed for children grades K through five, not only pleased the young, but also the young at heart and was a perfect compliment to the holiday season.

Did you know your children can be TV stars on K TV Woburn Street School? Yes, it's true. We now have an in-house television station residing at our school. The experience our children will receive through such a program will help them develop self esteem and confidence for future endeavors.

"What's Cooking," Woburn Street School's answer to the Galloping Gourmet is still available at the office for the reasonable price of $5.00. Remember this is the only fund raiser for this year. Buy several now and give them for gifts throughout the year.

The PAC sponsored father-daughter spaghetti supper will be held on January 29th. We must know if you plan to attend by January 22nd.

The Pumpkin Fair raffle table would like to give a heartfelt thank you for all the thoughtful donations that helped to make the raffle table such a big success this year.

Note: All school news for this column must be turned in by Monday evenings or you may call Arlene Surprenant at 658-5696.

Building Bridges of Understanding and breaking down misconceptions about Protestants and Catholics is the goal of the Tewksbury Interfaith Council's offerings during the week of January 17-24.

High school youth will come together through role playing, discussion, asking questions of a panel of pastors and a brief worship event Sunday, January 17 at St. Williams' Catholic Church from 7-9 p.m. Refreshments, of course, will be served.

"Questions You've Always Wanted to Ask a Clergyman but Never Dared," will be pulled from a hat for adults and responded to by a panel of pastors on Sunday, January 24 beginning at 7 p.m. at St. William's Church. A worship experience will lift up this first week of prayer for unity effort in many years.

Each congregation will affirm this effort in its own worship services and a daily meditation guide of scriptures, unity prayers and thanksgivings for different demonization's gifts.

Clergymen participating in this Week of Prayer are the Rev. Phillips Henderson, interim minister of Tewksbury First Baptist Church, the Rev. J. George Croft, OMI, St. William's Church, the Rev. Paul D. Millen, Tewksbury Congregational Church, and the Rev. Dr. Stephen T. Melius, Tewksbury United Methodist Church

Rep. Beckwith's January office hours

State Representative Geoffrey C. Beckwith, who represents Reading, North Reading and Wilmington's precinct three in the Massachusetts House, this week announced his schedule for January office hours.

"A state representative must be accessible to everyone in his or her district," said Beckwith, who holds regular office hours each month in order to make it easier for constituents to meet with him whenever they have a question or a problem concerning state government.

Beckwith will hold January office hours at two locations: on Thursday evening, January 21, he will be at the Flint Memorial Library on Bow Street in North Reading from 5:30 to 7; and on Thursday, January 21, he will be in the meeting room of the Reading Public Library on Middlesex Avenue from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

"Interested citizens should never hesitate to get in touch with me at any time," said Beckwith, who invited residents to call him at either his State House office (722-2430) or at home (944-5030). "But these office hours will provide everyone with an additional opportunity to see me personally and offer input, ask for information, or request assistance with a problem regarding state government."

Improvements sought for athletic fields

by Arlene Surprenant
Gerry O'Reilly paid a brief visit to the Wilmington Board of Selectmen Monday to suggest the town rebuild the high school athletic field. He said this would go far to stir up interest in the school athletic programs, which has lately been flagging because of tough competition and lack of players in some sports.

O'Reilly said with renovation work still being done on the blockhouse and bleachers, officials should take the opportunity now to "do a good job" so the town doesn't have to go through the same work in five or ten years. He also suggested selectmen get together a group of people with "expertise in use and needs" in athletic fields to oversee the work.

Jim Stewart agreed that something should be done with the field and explained a proposal he had made to the Town Manager. Stewart suggested consultants who are looking at the re-location of town hall to the town common area should also include the high school field in the feasibility study. Stewart suggested expanding the athletic field in order to keep all teams at the high school instead of moving some to other schools or the town hall at Glen Road. He said perhaps the town could even buy some property behind the present field to aid in that expansion.

The Town Manager assured those present the study would look at all municipal and school land uses in the area of Wilmington Town Common. Stewart's presentation, however, was not heard by O'Reilly who quickly exited the room before Stewart spoke.

High priced t-shirt

William Simpson was presented with a Kidsplace t-shirt in recognition of a generous donation in support of the new playground to be built at the Shawheen School. Presenting him with the t-shirt were Matthew Hardy, Adam Grady, Megan Thomas and Christine Boudreau.

A different kind of prisoner

Copyright © 1988
by Capt. Larz Neilson

To speak and use the term "American Prisoners" is, to the average individual, to speak of men who were Prisoners of War during the Second World War, or in a subsequent conflict.

There is another meaning. American soldiers, in World War II, and in the subsequent events, have been sentenced to imprisonment for a term of years, by U.S. Army courts martial. That type of imprisonment is not pleasant. It is, on the contrary, harsh.

The writer was in somewhat close association, during World War II, with such American prisoners. It is, all told, a sad story.

The story starts near a place named Bari, in Italy. Bari overlooks the Adriatic Sea, and across that sea is the country of Yugoslavia. The writer arrived at that port on December 6, 1943, in command of the SS John Drake Sloat.

Bari was a base of the British Eighth Army, but there were Americans present, too. The harbor had been in use for over 2,000 years, and, among other things, a Saint Nicholas was supposed to have lived there, according to the tales told of the local Roman Catholic Church. He was not the same fellow who, today, is pictured with red cheeks, a red set of clothes, and a white beard.

Bari was a base for the Eighth Army. The John Drake Sloat and other ships were bringing supplies to that army.

A few days earlier one of the ships had a supply of mustard gas, thousands of gallons, in tanks, on deck. It is a deadly gas, outlawed by international agreement. The purpose of shipping the gas to Bari was so that some would be available, should the minions of Hitler indulge in that type of warfare.

On December 2nd, 30 German planes flew across the Adriatic, from a base in Yugoslavia, and bombed the port. It was a deadly business. Mustard gas was spread all over the water. Any person who fell or dove into the water dove or fell into that gas and was killed. The total casualties amounted to over 2,000.

Another salient feature of the city was that very few young men were to be seen.

Mussolini had drafted the young men into the army, and then shipped them to Russia. There many of them were killed. The writer did not realize the awful story until he engaged in conversation with a young woman, behind the counter of a restaurant.

She was wearing a wedding ring. The writer asked where her husband was.

"E morte," she said—"He is dead."

The consequence was that many young women of Italy were without male companionship. When the American Army arrived there were hundreds of rich, relatively speaking, Americans to provide companionship. And those Americans were readily accepted by the Italian girls.

Men who had been drafted into the Army, and who were being used as truck drivers found that the local girls liked to ride in those trucks. It was nothing to "borrow" a truck, after dark, and go off for a ride into the country with an Italian girl friend.

The writer learned of this when he accepted an invitation from an American Army officer to go to the south of Italy and attend a Court Martial. There were to be about a dozen trials.

The trip was through Taranto, on the South Coast of Italy, and then to Lecce, in the "heel" of Italy. Somewhere near Lecce the Courts Martial were held.

A dozen young men, white or black, were being tried individually for the crime of stealing American Army trucks - the kind the GIs called 4 x 4s. The reason for "stealing" the trucks was not mentioned, but it was easy to understand that romance with an Italian girl friend was involved.

They were found guilty. Each was sentenced to four years at hard labor.

A few months later the writer was in the harbor of Naples in command of the SS Benjamin Goodhue.

The Benjamin Goodhue was a troop transport, capable of carrying 700 soldiers. It would load soldiers in, say Newport News, Virginia, and carry them to Naples.

Then the Benjamin Goodhue would spend a month, or two, or three, carrying French Colonial soldiers from Oran in North Africa to Italian ports. There were French officers, and Algerian, Moroccan, or Senegalese soldiers. When that tour of duty was over the Benjamin Goodhue would return to the United States for more stores, and for more American soldiers to take overseas.

But, this time, in Naples there were American prisoners waiting for the Benjamin Goodhue. Men who had been found guilty in a Court Martial were being sent to an American Prison, near Oran, North Africa.

Maybe many were only guilty of stealing trucks. Some were more than that - guilty of rape or murder.

There were about 200 prisoners. There was a detail of military police, armed with BARs (automatic rifles). The lieutenant in command was Harry R. Brittan, of the Philadelphia Police, a nice fellow, but hard as nails.

A white line had been painted on the forward deck of the Benjamin Goodhue. As long as the prisoners stayed forward of that line everything would be all right. But, the orders for the MPs were, shoot any prisoner who tries to cross that line.

One prisoner, who had the rank of lieutenant, had been found guilty of dealing in the Black Market. His sentence was 12 years. But, because he had not yet been "broken" he still wore a uniform. Until that happened he was still an officer in the Army, and he ate in the ship's salon with other officers. But he was under an order of "Silence." No one spoke to him.

After a half day of silence he left the officers' quarters and went down to the prisoners' area.

As far as was possible those prisoners were treated in the same manner as any other troops who were carried by the Benjamin Goodhue. There was the same food, the same quarters. They just were not allowed to cross that white line.

The Benjamin Goodhue had an orchestra, of sorts. It was, entirely a volunteer organization - three men with accordions, and two men with banjos or guitars. So the captain suggested that the orchestra go forward, in the evening, and make some music for the prisoners. They were only too glad to oblige.

The "orchestra" sat up on No. 2 hatch, a sort of canvass platform, and produced some lively music. The prisoners danced with each other, and enjoyed it.

It was pleasant, in a way, to watch those men. Being prisoners did not seem to bother them. One could guess that they had been drafted into the Army, and that any one place was just as good as another.

There was a game, called perhaps, "marching." It took 64 men to perform the game.

There would be eight rows of eight men in each row, standing shoulder to shoulder, and heel to toe, just as tightly as they could possibly be. Another man, who was called "sargent" would give the orders.

The "sargent" would stretch out on No. 2 hatch, just as if he were stretched out on a nice sunny beach. He would shout out the orders.

"Forward, harch! To the right harch! To the rear, harch! To the left flank, harch!"

In a few moments the marchers would be inextricably confused and intertwined. There would be a pile of soldiers, 64 men, all laughing and slapping their thighs.

And a new order of "marching" was formed, to go through the same performance.

A little over two days was spent in the voyage from Naples to Oran. For two days those prisoners had not been subject to harsh discipline. They had good food, and a good time.

In Oran a military police detachment was waiting for the prisoners, on the dock where the Benjamin Goodhue had lowered a gangway. As the prisoners started down that gangway there was a good hearty, spontaneous cheer for the ship. It was the prisoners way of saying thanks.

The MPs took note. They drew the hammers of their BARs, ready for anything, revolt, or whatever.

Then they realized the ship was being cheered, and they relaxed.

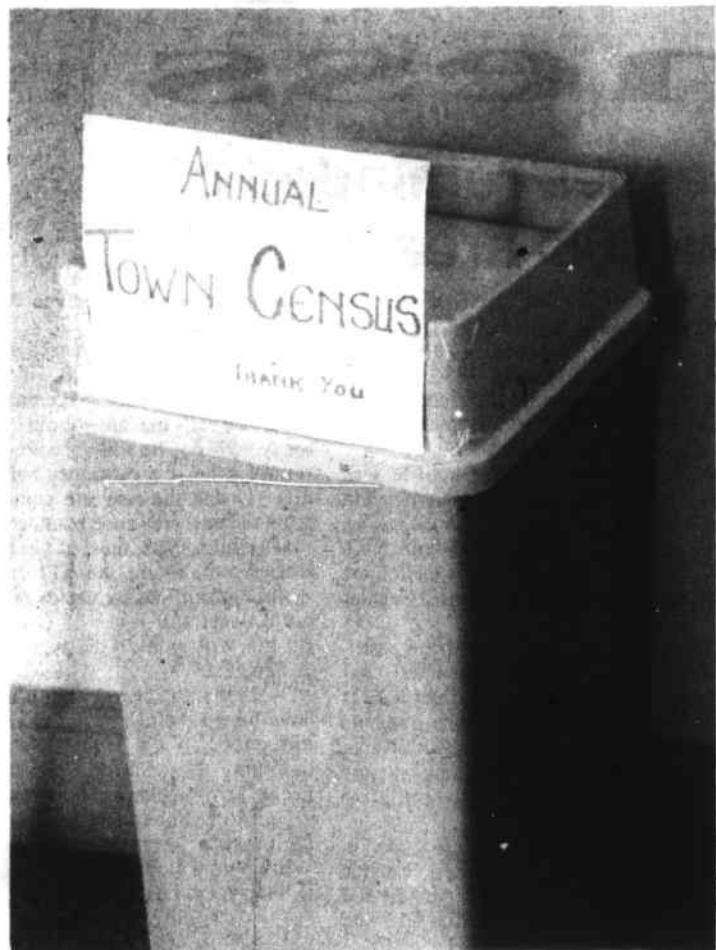

Whatever happened to those prisoners?

Presumably, after the war, they were released, with sentences still to be served. The writer really does not know.

But, in a way, they were like the poor people of Italy.

They did not ask to be drafted into the Army. They found themselves in a country, where there were no young men, and where the young women responded to the situation.

As Alfred Lord Tennyson wrote, on one occasion:
"Theirs not to reason why..."

The annual town census is underway in Tewksbury, but Town Clerk Liz Carey selected an unusual receptacle for collecting the forms. Census forms can now be ... um ... deposited in town hall.

Tewksbury census now underway

The annual town census has been mailed to every Tewksbury resident. Town Clerk Elizabeth Carey recommends that the form be completed and returned to the town clerk's office by February 1, 1988.

Once residents receive the form, Carey urges them to follow the enclosed instructions and return the census in the pre-addressed envelope, as soon as possible.

Carey explains that a prompt and accurate census is very important. The census provides information needed to assure that the town receives its fair share of state and federal funds.

The census information serves to provide: proof of residency to protect voting rights, and allows college students to apply for lower tuition at all Massachusetts state colleges.

The school census provides projection for future enrollments and related benefits which allows the school administrators to apply for additional state and federal funds and grants.

Census information is also used for calculating veterans' benefits, housing for the elderly, and other related benefits.

Residents in the housing complexes at Carnation Drive, Saunders Circle, and Flucker Heights, as well as residents at nursing homes and at the Tewksbury Hospital need not complete the census form; census information is acquired from the secretaries at their business offices.

"Your cooperation in returning this form before February 1, will prevent a costly follow up," Carey reminds residents.

New residents or those who have not received a census form please notify the Town Clerk's office at 851-2383.

Wilmington Board of Appeals decisions

Ten cases before the Wilmington Board of Appeals Tuesday evening (Jan. 12) presented no real difficulties. The easiest was that of Alfred and Valentina Blackburn of Concord Street who sought to construct a garage on their property within the required side yard set back.

It turned out that when Route 93 was constructed their house lot had been cut down in size because the state took some of the land by right of eminent domain, to widen Concord Street and to construct an access to Route 93. That is almost an automatic reason why such an appeal should be granted. The board spent some time checking on distances and then granted the appeal.

Joseph and Karen Sullivan were granted permission to subdivide a lot on Jaquith Road. The second lot would have two feet less than the required frontage.

Mark and Deborah Infantino were granted permission to build a home on a lot on Hardin Street with an insufficient rear yard. The house lot had 18,000 feet, in a 20,000 foot area of zoning.

A special permit was granted for a hammerhead lot between Concord Street and the railroad tracks. With the arguments being presented by Larry Beals of Beals and Thomas, Wetlands in the back were the problem, and because of that the property line had to be changed.

Steve Lawrenson, Wilmington builder, was granted five special permits for five hammerhead lots on what he terms the Waterford Estates, easterly of Woburn Street. Mr. Lawrenson had acquired a large tract of land northerly of Perry Avenue and has had a plan for 10 houselots approved by the Wilmington Planning Board.

The five hammerhead lots now give Lawrenson a total of 15 houselots on which to build homes.

Businesses reminded of new '508' area code

Businesses located in the North Suburban area should begin preparing now for the introduction of a new area code - 508 - in Eastern Massachusetts, which is scheduled to take effect July 16, 1988.

Jack Caunter, New England Telephone public relations manager, told the North Suburban Chamber of Commerce that local businesses should begin thinking about changes that the new area code will require.

"Business customers in this area (who will remain in the 617 area code) normally dealing with other businesses or customers located in the new 508 area region should begin familiarizing themselves with the new code," said Caunter.

He added that businesses with telephone switching equipment in their buildings should talk with their equipment vendor about any reprogramming that might be necessary.

New England Telephone announced in May, 1986, that the new area code would be introduced in 1988 to give customers ample time to prepare for the change.

"Right now, we're a little less than a year away from when the new area code will take effect, so we're trying to remind both NET business and residence customers that this is still happening," Caunter said.

The new area code is being introduced in Eastern Massachusetts because New England Telephone is running out of telephone numbers in the region. Having a second area code will give the company more telephone numbers to assign to customers.

Once the new area code is implemented, customers outside 508 calling someone in the new 508 region will have to dial "1," the new area code and the seven digit telephone number.

However, Caunter stressed that the introduction of 508 will not create a new toll calling boundary. Telephone calls that are not toll calls today will not be toll calls in the future, even if a customer has to dial "1" and the new area code to cross the new area code boundary.

After July, 1988, most of Greater Boston will retain the 617 code while Eastern Massachusetts areas north, west and south of Greater Boston will receive the new 508 designation.

Over the past several years, there have been several new area codes introduced in the United States, including New York City, San Diego, Los Angeles and Houston.

The North Suburban Chamber of Commerce covers Woburn, Wilmington, Bedford, Burlington, Billerica, and Lexington.

Possible world record set in Tewksbury

A local bank claims that it has set a world record for producing, printing and mailing the nation's first annual report of 1988. The report arrived fully printed at First Bank's Operation Center in Tewksbury at 9 a.m. on Monday, January 4.

"We have not checked with Guinness yet, but we believe we have set the world record for the earliest Annual Report in the Country," said First Bank Chairman of the Board/CEO George Duncan.

Asked how the bank was able to get the report done so early, Duncan replied, "We don't want to give away all our trade secrets, but I will say that some devoted First Bankers in the marketing, accounting and loan departments put in extra hours to make certain it happened." Duncan added, "when your year-end totals are as impressive as First Bank's have been year after year, that's an extra motivation to get the good word out to the public as quickly as possible."

THANK YOU FORT HOWARD CUP CORPORATION

The Wilmington Pop Warner Board of Directors, Coaches, Players and Cheerleaders would like to take this opportunity to offer our very special thanks to the Fort Howard Cup Corp. of Wilmington, formerly known as Sweetheart Plastics. Earlier this year Wilmington Pop Warner was in need of new helmets, the air suspension type, as well as the special NOCSAE test and reconditioning of the helmets left over from previous seasons. Jim Stewart, of the Board of Directors and the Board of Selectmen, was speaking of this need to Sandy Preiss of Fort Howard Cup Corp. Ms. Preiss expressed an interest in helping the Pop Warner program, but in particular to help in a way that would promote safety on the field since safety is a top priority at the Fort Howard plant. Ms. Preiss felt that helping defray the cost of new helmets and testing of the old ones was a natural, since the helmet protects the most vulnerable part of the body. It must be stressed that the contribution from Fort Howard was from their employees, out of a special fund that is used for worthwhile causes in the community. Fortunately for Wilmington Pop Warner, Fort Howard Cup plant manager, Dave Canavaera, concurred. It was decided that $4,500 would be donated for the use of buying new helmets and reconditioning the used ones.

Accepting the donation for Pop Warner was President Len Howard and Board Members Jim Cushing and Ray Ventura. The Board of Directors want to thank Dave Canavaera, Sandy Preiss and all the Fort Howard Cup Employees for this very generous donation which provided us with a successful and safe season.

Megan Donnelly named to Olympic team

The United States Field Hockey Association, the national governing body for women's field hockey, recently named the 16 women who will be representing the United States in Seoul in September as members of the 1988 U.S. Women's Olympic Field Hockey Team.

Former Wilmington High School and University of Massachusetts star Megan Donnelly was one of the women named to the squad.

The team was selected by the National Coaching Staff, headed by coach Boudewijn Castelijn, following a selection camp that was held at Rutgers University (Piscataway, N.J.) from January 1-4. The Olympians were chosen from among 52 athletes who were invited to stand for selection based on their participation in the USFHA's Olympic Development Program in 1987.

All 16 players were also members of the 1987 Pan American Team that took the silver medal in Indianapolis this past summer.

Three women are previous Olympians and medalists, having played on the 1984 team that took the bronze medal. Beth Beglin and Sheryl Johnson were 1980 and 1984 Olympians, while Marcy Place von Schottenstein was a 1984 Olympian. No player has less than one year's experience as a member of the National Team and only one is still attending college as an undergraduate (Tracy Fauchs, University of Conn.).

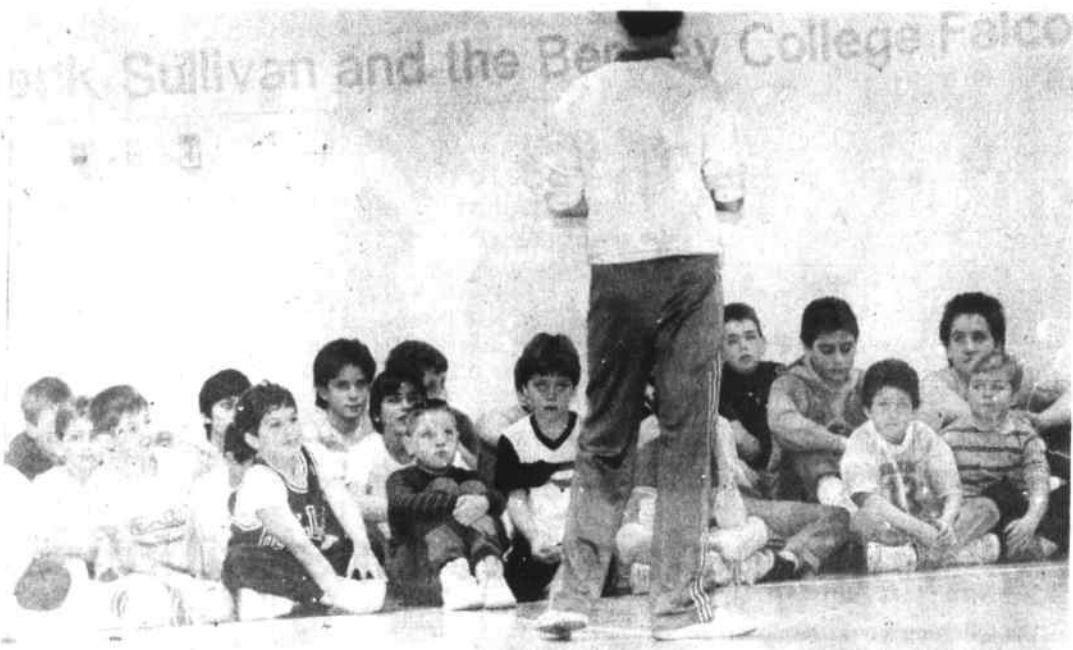

The Olympic Team will train in six team practices, ranging from one to two weeks in length, between now and the Olympic Games. In addition, the team will tour Australia (March) and Europe (July) and compete against three other Olympic Teams in the USA Field Hockey Classic (sponsored by Bud Light) this June in Trenton, N.J.

Some of the members of the U.S. Women's Olympic Field Hockey Team are: Elizabeth Beglin, 30, born in Teaneck, N.J., currently attending graduate school at the University of Iowa; 1979 graduate of West Chester University; selected to the U.S. National Team in 1977; 1980 and 1984 Olympic Team member; 116 international caps; served as captain of the team for the past three years.

Bentley College basketball clinic

Wilmington ski trips

Bill Peabody and Frank Birmingham are putting a new twist to an old idea. These Wilmington school teachers have, for approximately 17 years been providing trips to hundreds of Wilmington students through the Ski Club and through the eighth grade field trip.

This year they have decided to continue conducting trips, but instead of being sponsored through the public schools, the trips will be offered through a private travel club.

"Traveling Teens," TNT for short, has been organized to provide young men and women in grades six through 10 a chance to learn and travel with children their own age. During this ski season the following trips will be offered:

Mon., Jan. 18, Mt. Sunapee, N.H.;
Sat., Jan. 23, Cannon Mt., N.H.;
Sun., Jan. 31, Stratton Mt., Vt.;
Sat., Feb. 6, Tenney Mt., N.H.;
Fri., Feb. 12, Temple Mt., N.H.;
Fri., Feb. 26, Crotched Mt., N.H.;

Sun., Mar. 6, Pico Peak, Vt.;
weekend of March 11-13,
Berkshire East, Mass.

In addition to these trips, they will be conducting an April school vacation trip to New York City and Washington, D.C., and an eight day camping trip to Disney World and Busch Gardens and other Florida attractions in August.

Although these trips are conducted by two Wilmington teachers, the trips are not affiliated with the Wilmington public schools. Therefore, they are open not only to Wilmington children, but well behaved children from other communities.

Further information may be obtained by contacting Frank Birmingham at (617) 658-6321 or Bill Peabody at (603) 362-4003; or by writing to TNT in care of Birmingham, 8 Carson Ave., Wilmington, Ma 01887.

Outdoors column

Record fish -- thanks Dan!

by Bill Conlon

What a life! What a job!
Dan McGuinness has life by the tail. He's the first to fill the newly-created position of Hunting and Fishing Information and Education Specialist with the Massachusetts Division of Fisheries & Wildlife, and he said he loves his job.

The job title may sound tricky, but Dan said he's having a ball with it, since his main duty is to answer hunting and fishing questions.

Talk about backbreaking work! Where do I sign up?

The only thing that could possibly be better, Dan said, would be his boss telling him to go do whatever he feels like, and just come in on Fridays to collect his paychecks.

The position, he said, was created to spread the word about hunting and fishing in Massachusetts, and to provide a central "clearing house" for answers to different outdoor sports questions. Dan is also trying to coordinate between the different outdoors writers, sportsman's clubs and such like, to make sure that everyone gets current and accurate news.

And Dan was just in the process of compiling a list of the current state freshwater fishing records when I called this week. (I'll get to those in a bit.)

Dan also runs the Tags 'n' Trout program for the state. This unusual program allows a business, let's say a tackle shop, to have a number of trout tagged and released into a local pond or brook. Then, as the trout are caught, the tackle shop awards prizes to those who bring in the tags.

His additional duties include the distribution of hunting and fishing licenses, stamps and tags; and Dan was the one who provided up-to-the-minute information on the deer taken during the recent hunt.

For those who have hunting or fishing questions, this is the guy to answer them. Dan can be reached at 366-4479 or 727-2864 during the day, or drop him a line at the Division's Field Headquarters, Westboro, Mass., 01581.

Now -- the state records. Three new freshwater fishing records were set in 1987, and a fourth was tied. What prompted the call to Dan was a MONSTER crappie I saw hanging on the wall of Barnacle Bill's tackle shop in Littleton.

The fish, Barnacle said, weighed 3-pounds, 14-ounces and was a state record when it was caught in 1973. What came as a bigger surprise was that the fish allegedly came out of Ames Pond in Tewksbury! Dan said he'd have to do some research to find out if the crappie was a one-time record, but it isn't one now. Man, what a skillet filler!

Anyway, the fishing records:
Brook Trout -- caught by Thomas Laptew from Otis Reservoir in '68, weighing 6-pounds-4.

Brown Trout -- caught by Dana DeBlois from Wachusett Reservoir in '66, weighing 19-pounds-10!

Rainbow Trout -- caught in '84 by James Craven, taken from the Quabbin Reservoir and weighing 13-pounds even.

Lake Trout -- caught by Mark Zork in '84, taken from Wachusett Reservoir and weighing 21-pounds, 13-ounces. Yikes!

Landlocked Salmon -- caught in the Wachusett Reservoir in '85 by Richard Gagne. Dan said he was about 100 feet away and watched as the 10-pound-2 fish was hauled in.

Largemouth Bass -- and this one is a heartbreaker -- caught by Walter Bolonis in 1985 from Samson's Pond. Walter's record bass weighed (gulp) 15-pounds, 8-ounces! Oh, how would it be?

Smallmouth -- caught by Mike Howe from the Quaboag River in '84, weighing 7-pounds-4.

Walleye -- taken from the Quabbin in '75, by Robert Methot, and weighing 11-pounds even. Dan noted that Massachusetts doesn't have a serious walleye stocking program, more's the pity.

Pickering -- for those who know old chainsides, this is a nice fish! -- was caught by Mrs. James Martin from Laurel Lake in 1954, weighing 9-pounds, 5-ounces. The record has stood for over 30 years without challenge!

American Shad -- taken from the Connecticut River in '86, weighing 11-pounds-4, and taken by Bob Thibodo. I predict that the next record shad will be taken from the Merrimack River.

Yellow perch -- caught in 1979 from the South Watuppa Reservoir by James O'Connor and weighing 2-pounds-12.

White perch -- Joanne Sanborn, Wachusett Reservoir in 1976, and weighing 2-pounds-14.

Crappie (or calico) -- Four-pounds, 10-ounces, taken by James Crowley from Lake's Pond in 1980. Bluegill -- caught from South Athol Pond in '82 by Heather Bulger, and weighing 2-pounds-1!

Channel catfish -- George Plante, Quaboag River, 1976, 23-pounds!

Carp -- Connecticut River by Roger Pyzocha in 1983, weighing 31-pounds-8. Roger, by the way, will receive 25 bronze pins from the state for fish he caught in 1987 alone. This guy is dangerous!

And the new records set in 1987 are for:

Northern Pike -- caught in East Brimfield Reservoir by Charles Puccelli of Dudley, weighing 34-pounds even! Not bad!

Tiger Muskie -- from Lake Quinsigamond (outside Worcester) by Albert Farland and weighing 19-pounds-4. Tiger muskie haven't been around all that long, so don't expect this record to stand. Tiger muskie grow to be duck-eaters!

White Catfish -- caught at Lake Baddacock in Groton by Mike Payne, and weighing 9-pounds-3.

Bullhead -- the previous record of 3-pounds-8, taken by Roger Aziz Jr. in 1983, was matched by a one taken from Whitehall Lake by Janet Bourgeois of Marlboro.

Well, there you have it. Those are the freshwater fishing records as of January 6, 1988, but there's no such thing as an unbreakable record. Monster fish are now swimming in local lakes, and Forge Pond in Westford springs to mind as one ponds with some huge bass! Go for it!

Remember, the state has an award program for big fish, with bronze pins given out for mere monsters, and gold pins and plaques for annual records. Your abstract of the fishing laws lists the size limits for "pin fish," but there have been changes! I'll provide the new size limits when I get them from Dan. What a handy guy to know!

- Tackle Box -

Lot's of neat stuff going on! The ice-fishing tournament season is now upon us, so my long-suffering wife has been warned not to expect my shining face at the weekend breakfast table until sometime in March.

This Sunday, look for a derby on Long Pond in Tyngsboro, to be held by the Merrimack Valley Bass Masters. Sign-up is from 6 a.m. to noon, fishing starts at 7:30 and runs until 2 p.m. sharp. Entry fee is $10 and the prizes are $200, $150, $100, $75, and $50 with trophies for each. Bass and pickerel only -- see you there.

One tackle shop sure to benefit from the ice-fishing activity will be Dan's Bait & Tackle, on the shore of Lake Mascuppic in Tyngsboro, next to the Bellringer Lounge.

Other tournaments this month will be held on the Artichoke Reservoir in Newburyport on January 17; a New England Bass Masters derby on Crystal Lake in Chelmsford on January 23; the Merrimack Valley Bass Masters tournament on Lake Mascuppic in Tyngsboro on January 24; the Crystal Lakers derby on Crystal Lake on January 30; the Greater Lowell Fly Fishers tourney on Lake Mascuppic on January 31; and the annual Clut Fleur-de-Lis event on Tyngsboro's Long Pond on January 31.

And that's just the January tournament schedule. February is just as busy.

See you on the ice!

Burlington's Ellie Baskam

I've always loved stuffed animals"

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

Sheriff Benjamin McCabe, the eight foot, 20 pound "son" of Ellie and Steve Baskam of Burlington, is responsible for law and order in the "zoo room" where he presides. By all appearances, he does a splendid job — 283 stuffed animals and about 300 other Baskam "children" all look up to him.

There are almost 600 stories there, in the zoo room; the animals each have at least one name; the miniatures hail from around the world. "I always loved stuffed animals," says Ellie Baskam. "And I'm very proud of our collection."

Captain Kirk and Mr. Spock are in evidence there also, a welcome exception only because Baskam is a Trekkie. "I'm not into dolls," she says, her panda earrings bouncing. "My thing is really animals." And bears are her essentials — koalas, pandas, grizzlies, polars, and teddies most of all.

Benjamin is first in size, although about ninth in order of arrival. Named after a particular moment in a "Bonanza" episode, he comes from a store in Medway and an overwhelming desire for a giant bear. "We were visiting some friends," says Baskam, "and they knew I loved bears so they took us to a nearby store to see the one there."

They all climbed into a Vega hatchback and located the $50 Benjamin sitting way at the back of the store. "Stephen carried him to the front," she recalls. "We were hysterical because the thing is eight and a half feet when it's standing, and Stephen is six foot two. While he was carrying him out, a woman said to me, 'It'll kill the baby!'"

I said, "It's not for a baby — it's for me!" She was just flabbergasted. A mild reaction compared to that of the drivers who happened to catch the scene on the way home: furry brown legs and head emerging from the top of the car, four friends in front.

"Then we had to get him into the house," says Baskam who stands five feet tall. "He's bigger than a door frame and to get him in, we had to shove him through. I never laughed so hard in my life."

The antics in the zoo room, the background histories of each inhabitant, the personalities of every critter come straight from Baskam's imagination. She knows it, and is proud. "If you look around the house, you'll see animals everywhere," she says. "Anything that we collect is basically animals. The other things were given to us — like these ships."

There are ships, pictures, stained and glazed animals, ceramic, terra cotta, porcelain, and crewel animals; bunnies, foxes, lions, deer, owls; plates with bears and plates with birds; a walrus, court jester, tea party scene; whistles, magicians, chess figures, turtles, unicorns; a panda bear rug and a speaker phone in the shape of a bear — all "typical Ellie-type things."

"I even have a collection of plates depicting childhood memories," she continues, "either a little girl or little boy playing with stuffed animals. That's why I got the collection. The plates are nothing too spectacular. It's what they represent. A lot of it is very reminiscent of my childhood."

"I had an unhappy childhood," she says. "My father died when I was 10 months old and as soon as I was old enough to go to school, my mother had to go to work full time. She was never there for me — which I think was part of her childhood as well; no one was ever there for her and it just repeated itself."

"So when I was growing up, I was all alone," she continues. "If I was frightened or lonely or sad, all I had were my dolls and stuffed animals. There was no one to comfort me. When I see a stuffed animal, when I reach out and touch it, there's just so much love emanating from me that I feel being reflected back to me."

The collecting began in college with Multi-Baby, lime-green Larisa, and Oscar the Turtle, intensifying when the Baskams moved to Burlington seven years ago. The zoo room itself has hardly any room left. Its shelves are crammed with layer upon layer of animals — Alexander the Great, Bernie and his wife Bernice, Felix and Felicia holding hands, Tony the Tiger, Paddington, Alf, A.G. Bear, Bar Mitzvah Bear (with a pen), Artie the Aardvark, Fluffy the Bunny, Mirdok the Vulture, Snoopy, a puffalump, a puppet, a dancing monkey, a dragon...

There are bear mobiles, bears on wheels, bears in a basket, on a cookie tin, on a kite; ceramic bears with ceramic treats, bear thimbles and bear necessities — royal, crimson, lemon, snow, hot pink, turquoise.

Other shelves are filled with miniatures, many of which were collected by Steve's mother. There are pincushions from Singapore, blue elephants from Rio, a camel from Israel, a grasshopper from Leningrad, an octopus from Vancouver...

"Name brands mean very little to me," says Baskam, "and I don't like older animals. I like them all brand new. I'm that way in many things. I won't buy a used car."

When Baskam refers to her Cabbage Patch family, the emphasis is heavily on family. "My Cabbage Patch kids are all handmade," she says. "One of them was a gift. When I got the little boy, I had to have a family. We will never have real children but I wanted a family so I could change them and dress them, and now we have three children. The boy is named Randy Duncan — Randy after a blond, blue-eyed, very handsome boy I had a crush on in the seventh grade, Duncan after an actor I have a thing for. Randy Duncan is supposed to be eight years old."

"My little girl is Amy Elane. If I had a daughter, that would have been her name — Amy after my mother and Elane

Galavanting thoughts

FM TALK: Thoughts that crossed our gallivanting-around correspondent's mind this week:

Hurry! the holidays are over. Now we can all get over our holiday blues and back to normal again. Of course, now there is also the tiny matter of paying off all those post-holiday credit card bills, which are beginning to pile up in my mailbox faster than the snow that's falling at the moment this column is being written. Somehow the holidays were cheerier when I was younger...

Speaking of the holidays, comedian Steve Wright spent his New Year's Eve celebrating at the Burlington Marriott's lounge... This columnist was fascinated by the recently published results of some extensive research done to determine whether a broken heart can actually kill you. A Finnish study, which focused on 95,000 widows and widowers, concluded that the death rate of surviving spouses increased dramatically following the death of a partner. The study noted that, although you can't actually die from a "broken" heart, increased stress immediately after a spouse's death can spark a heart attack in the surviving spouse. Researchers noted also that there is a significant increase in depression at that time, which can result in fatal accidents and even suicide.

The recent sudden and tragic death of basketball legend Pete Maravich came as a hard punch to this columnist's chest. Pistol Pete was one of my biggest heroes during my college days in the late sixties and early seventies. I had the pleasure of watching him play, and frankly, you couldn't help but be mesmerized by the spunky kid with, at that time, bushy hair. Even if I hadn't cared for Maravich, I still would have been subjected to his college

Creative Arts registration continues

Creative Arts is holding registration now through Jan. 22, and thereafter as space permits, for classes and workshops beginning in February. There's a great variety of courses including many old favorites and several new additions. And, as always, something for every age from three through adult.

For adults the popular standards include Portrait Painting, Drawing, Ballroom Dancing, Stained Glass, and Quilting. New on the list is Nuts and Bolts of Graphic Design featuring guest artist Mike Goldberg, Art Director for one of Boston's leading film and video production companies. For persons responsible for publicity of clubs and organizations, high school students interested in graphic arts as a career, and small business owners concerned with developing an attractive image, the course will teach time-saving and cost effective design techniques while developing the students' creative potential and visual thinking skills.

Also new for adults is the Women's Singing Group. Designed for beginners or returnees to ensemble singing, no previous musical training is required. The course will introduce the concepts of blend, balance, and expression as the students develop confidence, physical and aural skills, and knowledge of different musical styles. The emphasis of the group will be on relaxation and enjoyment, two key elements in good singing.

Adults with less time to invest should investigate our workshops. Ranging from Dried Flower Wreaths to Stenciling to Stained Glass; Quilting to Landscaping to much more, there's certainly great variety. New to the workshop list is "Puppet Making for Teachers and Parents." Designed for parents and other adults who work with children, this two-session workshop will demonstrate several types of puppets and include construction of a hard-head hand puppet, and a short puppet show. Young people 12 and over are also welcome and encouraged to sign up.

"Experience the Arts," Creative Arts afterschool program, once again features courses in pottery, wood-working, puppetry, projects in art, story making, and video. Two courses in collage encourage looking at ordinary materials in new and creative ways and exploring concepts of balance and shape.

Dance offerings include five different classes for ages three through nine ranging from "Intro to Creative Dance" to courses combining Jazz, Aerobics, Tap and Ballet. Emphasis is on the enjoyment of dance and development of self-confidence and agility.

Creative Arts Music and Arts Schools each continue to offer systematic training to classes and individuals. Art students work on drawing and painting leading up to work with oils and acrylics.

Music students may choose or combine private lessons, group lessons, and ensemble playing in orchestra, chamber groups, or rock band. Lessons are offered in all strings, Suzuki or traditionally-taught, piano, guitar, woodwinds, brass, and voice. Increasingly, private lessons are not "just for kids," so adults who have always wanted to play some instrument, or who studied as children but then stopped, are especially encouraged to sign up.

Flyers with more information are available at local libraries, or by calling the Creative Arts office at 942-0538. There's really something for everyone, so why not see what Creative Arts has for you?

"I've always loved stuffed animals"

after Steve's mother. She is supposed to be six years old and she has brown hair with brown eyes, just like me," she says.

"The baby is six months old and her name is Pepper Frederika. She has red hair with green eyes. Pepper is for the red hair. My father's name was Fred. My mother told me that the relatives on my father's side were all redheads with green eyes. Supposedly, my father had auburn hair with hazel eyes but I never knew him, and there are no color pictures of him."

As with all parents, Baskam did what was necessary to integrate this new baby into the family. "The doll actually came with blue eyes and I made her eyes green, and one of my friends colored in her hair for me. They're very much our children. I sewed them, Steve stuffed them, and normal-size clothes won't fit them," says

Baskam. "When I dress them, sometimes the poor things can't breathe."

"What is daddy doing? He is so mean to you," she interrupts herself to speak to 10-year-old Cinnamon who has appeared, sporting a phone cord. "We will always have dogs and they will probably be the names of spices and fruits. Our first dog's name was Pumpkin."

Cinnamon's favorite room is the zoo room. "We used to sit in that room all the time before we built our addition and she was always there with us," says Baskam. "When it changed into the zoo room, she would still bring all her treats and favorite things in there. She spends time just resting in there. I think it's because of the animals. She knows they're not real but she feels like they're friends, possibly because I do."

Baskam teaches home economics at Breed Jr. High School in Lynn, foods primarily. "I've been teaching for 15 years and I can teach both foods and sewing. I have a panda bear and dolphin that I made myself. I don't enjoy sewing — but I've made outfits for our bear Merlin. I'm a very romantic person and I made a whole ensemble for Valentine's Day — two placemats, fancy napkins, table runners, something for the candles, all with lace and satin ribbon."

"I have to be really motivated to sew," she continues. "But to make stuffed animals or costumes, you really don't have to pull my arm too much. Repairs, making clothes, forget it. I just won't do it."

For fun, the Baskams travel, shop, and collect. "Stephen collects chess sets. He's not into stuffed animals but he'll do ceramics with me. He encourages all my interests and likes to share whatever I'm involved in," she says.

"I do ceramics, animals primarily," she continues. "Halloween is my favorite holiday. I go crazy on Halloween. I have a haunted house and a music box that makes scary noises and the whole bit. Sometimes I get dressed up. One year, I went trick or treating. Now I just kind of enjoy the kids coming to the door."

For fun also, she collects photos and autographs of favorite actors. "The way I release tension is I have a favorite actor, usually someone new every year," she says. "But I've been in love with Charlton Heston since I was 10 years old. When I set on someone, it doesn't go away the next year. I tried to join Charlton Heston's fan club but it had disbanded years ago." Robert Ulrich and Ken Wahl are high on her most recent list of favorites.

"I just like to do a lot of things, a lot of fun things," says Baskam. "I'm not a serious person except when I have to be. I laugh very easily."

From the raccoons on the mailbox outside the house to the bears on the light switch inside the zoo room, the collections and the animals are a source of comfort, joy, pride, and fun for all the Baskams. "I believe they might be alive in a different dimension, one that we can't exist in," says Baskam. "When I look at them and see the faces, I always feel that somewhere, somehow they exist. A normal person looking at them would say 'forget it' — but when I look at them, I feel feelings."

As for Sheriff Ben McCabe, settled back against the zoo room wall, he has nothing to say at all.

But he did just wink. Didn't he?

Roving from S-1

basketball feats: a college roommate of mine so loved Pistol Pete that his dorm walls were covered with pictures and stories of Pete's athletic accomplishments. The death of Pete Maravich hit home with 1) an important part of my past has come to an untimely end, and 2) I'm getting older, and I can no longer think of myself as immortal.

Another interesting story with a connection to the late sixties hit the news this week. The producers of the controversial film "Tropic of Cancer," which was shot at MCI Bridgewater in 1966, are asking the Suffolk Superior Court for permission to show the film once again to the general public. As a communications student at that time, I had the opportunity to view parts of the film just prior to its being banned only six weeks after it made its debut in New York City. Although this state has appointed a guardian to protect the rights of the 62 people whose lives are intimately explored in the film, I frankly think it will be difficult to locate most of those who appeared in the film. Notwithstanding this effort by the state, the film should be released for viewing by the general public. The Frederick Wiseman film shows the horrors that existed in mental institutions at that time, a horror that hopefully will never be repeated.

On to a lighter subject: two very charming and attractive young women from Woburn insisted recently that I would not take the time to say hello to them in this column. Well, they were wrong. The two young women are Debbie Mirabello and Ann Boudreau, who wanted me to let everybody know she's going to be a terrific teacher in the near future. Debbie, on the other hand, told this columnist she wants to become an exotic dancer, but somehow I find this hard to believe. Too intellectual, and yes, intellectual women do come from Woburn. They also wanted me to say that. So it's said.

Just for the heck of it, I'm going to make my early-1988 presidential predictions: Gary Hart will split the Democratic primary vote, leaving the Democratic convention to draft New York Governor Mario Cuomo as their candidate. He will latch onto Jesse Jackson as a VP candidate, since he is the only Democratic presidential hopeful who can muster up the minority vote (the Democratic party is comprised mostly of minority voters — blacks, Hispanics and the poor, whether we want to admit it or not). The Republican candidate will be Bob Dole, who will emerge from that side's pack with Howard Baker on his coattail. The Dole/Baker ticket will win. The country isn't ready for an Italian /Black presidential team, and may never be, at least in our lifetime.

Rumor has it that the Red Sox are going to be wearing new uniforms next season. Rumor also has it that these uniforms will have a touch of the old style baseball uniform, similar to the old "Pittsburgh Pirates" uniforms. I've always loved the classy look of the Red Sox uniform, and I hope management doesn't do something as foolish as, say, the Oakland Athletics did when they came up with those ridiculous multi-colored uniforms as a means of "upgrading" their look to suit the current times.

"People seldom improve when they have no other model but themselves to copy after," — Oliver Goldsmith.

Make it a good week.

Rent a table

Crafts Fair in Stoneham

The Amica Class women's fellowship of the First Congregational Church of Stoneham is now renting tables for its annual Craft Fair to be held this year on Saturday, March 19, from 9

There is ample parking in the area for the large crowd of shoppers who attend this event each year.

At a time when the cold winds are blowing and the New England snow is snowing, it may be difficult for most people to think of spring flowers and the Easter season, but craft people who are preparing for warmer days will find that the March 19 Craft Fair is being held just in time for enthusiastic shoppers who are anxious to welcome the warmer temperatures of Spring and the Easter season.

So, don't delay. Call the numbers listed above to obtain your application and additional information about the March 19 Craft Fair.

IN-DEPTH LOOK AT STOCK MARKET CRASH

Baffled by "bullish?" Ready to cash in all those stocks and bonds and start investing in Florida real estate? Secretly stuffing greenbacks in the mattress? Well, don't panic, help is on the way!

On Wednesday, January 20, faculty experts from Salem State College's School of Business and Departments of Economics and Psychology will present a panel discussion on economic conditions entitled "Market Chaos: A Blessing in Disguise?" as the opening event of the 1987-88 SSC Public Policy Institute Faculty Colloquium.

According to Dr. Peter Mazareas, Director of the Public Policy Institute and Vice President of the SSC Office of External Affairs and Development, the Colloquium was established last year to provide a local forum for addressing current public policy issues. This year, in addition to focusing on U.S. fiscal affairs the Colloquium will offer lectures on the issues of child care, U.S. education methods, the global economy, and preparing for the 21st century.

"Market Chaos" will start at 7:30 p.m. in Presidential Hall, SSC Alumni House, 262 Loring Avenue, Salem. A question and answer period will follow the panel presentations. As part of SSC's service mission to the community, the event is free and open to the public.

Dates and locations of other Colloquia are to be announced. For further information, call 741-6000, ext. 200. The Public Policy Institute is a project of the SSC Office of External Affairs and Development.

Adventures In Music concert begins 29th season

Adventures In Music announces its 29th annual concert series. The programs are specially designed to introduce children to classical music in an entertaining atmosphere. Students may also participate along with the professional performers in certain programs.

Advance tickets are available by phoning Reading's AIM representative, Lynda Anderson at 942-0582. Series tickets for all programs are $16; single tickets in advance are $5 and at the door $6.

The season opened in January with "The Firebird," featuring the Underground Railway Puppet Theater. Colored translucent puppets and reflected light figures play the action on huge screens to "The Firebird Suite" by Stravinsky and "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks" by Richard Strauss. Prisms and projectors provide special effects. This production was jointly commissioned in 1981 by the Boston Symphony Orchestra and AIM, and has since been performed in major cities across the nation. Performances are Saturday, January 16 at 3 p.m. at Marlboro Middle School and Sunday, January 17 at 2 p.m. at Wakefield Junior High.

In February, the series continues with "Superbrass," highlighting the golden instruments of the orchestra — the brass. In March, AIM offers a musical salute to the Olympics with "Olympic Fanfare." The series concludes in April with "Off the Waltz," a zany, tuneful account of the adventures of Johann Strauss, Jr., the great waltz king.

In Billerica

Many staff positions for Community Theatre

The Billerica Community Theatre is seeking a director for their spring production of the mystery, "The Night Is My Enemy" by Fred Carmichael.

Production is scheduled for late April. Anyone interested in directing this show should send a letter along with a resume of manager, set designer, lighting designer, sound person, props coordinator, stage crew, make-up coordinator, publicity chairperson, tickets, refreshments committee, and most importantly, a costume design coordinator, as this is a period show requiring extensive costuming for the 1890s — 1900s. Most positions require no previous experience.

First annual

Winchester Healthcare meeting held

Winchester Healthcare Management, Inc., recently held its first annual meeting as a reorganized parent corporation that includes Winchester Hospital, Winchester Healthcare Enterprises, Inc., and Winchester Healthcare Investments, Inc.

Sumner R. Andrews, chairman of the Board of Directors welcomed three new directors, all to the parent company. They are Richard C. Ockerbloom of Winchester, executive vice president and general manager of the Boston Globe and its chief operating officer; Frank E. Markiewicz of Woburn, vice president of the Suburban National Bank of Arlington; and John Callan of Wilmington, attorney.

Reelected to a three-year term as directors were Churchill G. Franklin of Reading, senior vice president of Acadian Financial Research, Inc.; Frank M. Gunby, Jr., of Winchester, associate, chief mechanical engineer, Metcalf & Eddy; Gustav G. Kaufman, M.D., of Winchester, now retired; John C. Martini of Woburn, president of Martini Insurance Agency; Frank Previte, Reading, management consultant; and Thornton Stearns, Winchester, president of Vacuum Barrier Corporation.

In his report to the board, Andrews praised the strong management team and thanked all volunteers (hospital volunteers and board members alike) for their time "but more than that for the heart that is visible."

He recognized Samuel L. Winer, M.D., chief of anesthesia, who retired in September after 32 years of service to the hospital. Referring to the excellent relationship of the medical staff and the board, Dr. Winer spoke of the closeness and open communication that exists between them which he believes is unique to a hospital. "Don't ever let it go," he advised.

Eugene E. Loubier, president, spoke of the unshakable foundation of service, quality, friends, and supporters that have characterized the hospital's first 75 years. Focusing on the changes that are occurring in the health care industry, he said, "As we begin our next 75 years, we are positioning ourselves to meet unprecedented challenges. Foremost will be the continued emphasis on quality of care and access to care."

Guiding all hospitals in the next decade, Loubier predicted, will be increased regulation at the federal, state, and regional levels; increased pressure for cost containment, growth of managed care plans (HMOs) and multi-hospital systems; greater involvement of physicians; unresolved manpower shortages; and escalating ethical conflicts.

Austin Broadhurst, a member of the Board of Directors who also serves as chairman of Winchester Healthcare Enterprises, Inc., pointed out that new businesses generally do not show a return during their first year. Yet, after only nine months, Enterprises surprised the auditors with a solid surplus. "We started out with the idea that it is our job to make money in order to help the hospital in the long run, and we elected to undertake activities that would."

To date, Enterprise businesses all support health care: a mammography diagnostic center, two physical therapy centers, and a physicians' billing service. Arrangements are underway to provide durable medical equipment as well.

Winchester Healthcare Investments, Inc., Chairman Churchill Franklin reported that funds transferred from Winchester Hospital to the investment company have been invested according to guidelines established by the Finance Committee. Daniel Ahear, chairman of the investment managers, reviewed the portfolio performance, calling 1987 a very good year, with guarded promise (given the stock market situation) for a good year ahead.

Stephen Laverty, treasurer, reported that the first year of operations for the reorganized corporation was very busy and included several significant transactions: refinancing of outstanding hospital debt which produced significant dollar savings, financing of the $5 million maternity unit renovations project at the hospital, the capitalization of three new companies in the reorganization, and a very successful year of fundraising.

Hospital Executive Vice President John O'Hara summarized the hospital's achievements during 1987, including renewed commitment to quality care, emphasis on employee recruitment and retention, and continued successful management despite the regulators' imposition of stricter controls.

Thomas Dowd, M.D., president of the hospital's Medical and Dental Staff, described the significance of the renovated maternity unit, scheduled for completion in early summer; planned acquisition of laser technology in the Medical Ambulatory Care Unit; and several new members of the Medical and Dental Staff.

The Winchester Healthcare Management, Inc., 1987 Annual Report has been dedicated to the employees of Winchester Hospital, "the true guardians of health care and the ones in whom we entrust our pledge of quality." Copies are available to anyone in the community by calling the Community Relations Department at that hospital.

January is Volunteer Blood Donor Month

Emphasizing the need for blood every day, but especially after the holiday season, Acting Governor Evelyn Murphy has proclaimed the month of January as Volunteer Blood Donor Month in the state of Massachusetts.

Murphy is recognizing volunteer blood donors for their support and also urging all healthy, eligible members of the Commonwealth to help maintain a safe and adequate blood supply.

In her proclamation the Acting Governor declared, "The support of each and every eligible, healthy citizen is instrumental. Blood is a resource that must continually be replenished and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts must face this challenge again this year, as they have done so generously in the past." She also went on to add, "those who support the Volunteer Blood Donor program have given the gift of life to their neighbors."

These unselfish citizens are the heroes of today."

The ARCBS-NER, through the generous support of volunteer blood donors, provides approximately 90 percent of the blood transfused to patients in hospitals within the state of Massachusetts. The need for blood exists daily. Blood must be available before the need for all trauma victims, burn victims, transplant patients, and hospitalized patients throughout the state of Massachusetts. Blood must be collected today to ensure that it is available tomorrow.

Donating blood takes a few minutes of your time and one blood donation can help save the lives of up to three patients. Healthy, eligible individuals at least 18 years of age (17 with a signed parental/guardian American Red Cross consent form) who wish to donate blood, the gift of life, can call 1-800-922-HERO for more information.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

They went away as boys and came back men and heroes at war's end. Most of them silent, with very few boasting of their war experiences. These are the men who were the real heroes, who did their duty without a murmur. Johnny Giovanni was one of the thousands of men and women from the Middlesex East area who answered our nation's call. John was an aerial engineer gunner with the 385th Bomber Group. Taking off from somewhere in England, his plane was shot down on its 35th mission over Germany. He was taken prisoner and was forced to march 300 excruciating miles to Frankfurt, Germany. After what seemed an eternity, General Patton's 3rd Army liberated Johnny, and he returned home to a grateful nation. Please don't ask me who the medal winners in this area are — you will find them like Johnny, members of the D.A.V. or VFW Posts. They are all quiet, humble and unassuming, the stuff heroes are made of. Memories, memories, dreams of days long ago. I have fond memories of my older brothers and sisters using expressions that some of you may remember, like "You're the cat's meow," "Gee Willikens," "Thanks for the buggy ride," "Twenty-two skidoo," "Does your mother know you're out, Cecelia?" "Oh, for crying out loud!" "Cute as a button," and "Head for the roundhouse, Nellie, he can't corner you there." I'll bet some of you readers can recall some that I have forgotten. Anyone who has tried to get a tradesman to get some work done can appreciate this. A man, with his toolbox in hand, rang my next door neighbor's doorbell. "Good morning," he said, "I've come to fix the leaking water pipe, I'm the plumber." "But I didn't call a plumber," Mary Hanly said. "What? Aren't you Mrs. Foster?" "No, she moved away a year ago. 'How do you like people like that,' he exclaimed. 'They call for a plumber, claiming it's an emergency, and then they move away!'" I asked Forest (Woody) Knowles of Burlington why he gets a good night's sleep. "Do you count sheep, Woody?" "No," he replied, "I talk to the Shepherd." The inventor of the "door knocker" was notified that he won the "no bell" prize. He said "Aw, who gives a rap!" "What's the height of stupidity?" I asked Dennis Tully. "How tall are you, Woodchipper?" he shouted as he ran out the door. Folks, I know it's January and that there will be plenty of snow before spring planting. But it's not too early to get ready. My friend Leland Brown put a personal ad in the Farmer's Newsletter: "Wanted, by New Hampshire farmer 42, woman about 30 who drives a tractor. Please enclose picture of the tractor." Those of you who are like us "dog lovers" will know what I mean when I quote Dan Bennett, "There is nothing in the world friendlier than a 'wet dog.'" Sam Goldwyn, the late movie producer, would mangle the English language so badly that his mixed metaphors came to be known as "Goldwynisms." Here are a few of his many classics, "A verbal contract isn't worth the paper it's written on." "For your information, gentlemen, I would like to ask a question." "Don't talk when I'm interrupting." "Include me out," and "I taught you everything I know and you're still stupid." Folks, many of you are called to the dinner table by the ringing of a bell, or the simple announcement that "dinner is ready." If you're invited to my house for dinner, you most likely will hear the smoke alarm go off and you will wish you never showed up. I was thinking of inviting Fred Neilson of Wilmington, John Ridings and his lovely wife Jennie of N. Reading, Robert Burns and Martha of Woburn, Louis and Gail O'Malley of Winchester, Wayne and Diane Higden of Burlington, and Father Martin Ryan S.J. of St. Margaret's Church, Burlington. I told Kathy about it and said, "Please don't embarrass me, be very careful with your cooking." "Well," she said, "what do you want me to say, dinner is ready, or dinner is served?" A pot and pan came flying by my head when I said, "If it's like the time Frank Mazzoni came to dinner, just say, 'Dinner is burnt!'" Folks, after paying $1.40 for a head of iceberg lettuce, 69 cents a pound for peppers, and $1.25 for a cauliflower, I asked a farmer friend of mine why farm products are so expensive. "Well," he said, "When a farmer is supposed to know the botanical name of what he's raising, and the zoological name of the insect that eats it, and the chemical name of what will kill it — well, somebody has got to pay for it!"

When Winchester letter carrier Charlie Mullen told me that he was born in Woburn, I asked, "What part, Charlie?" He smiled and said, "All of me." Edmond Baratta said, "Woodchipper, an ice cream was named after you — it's 'Tutti Fruiti.'" A veritable human dynamo, Mrs. Patricia Millward, told me that the Tewksbury Garden Club members are to be commended for their wonderful job decorating the Common for Christmas. The multi-colored lights were purchased with donations from public-spirited citizens, and the green trees represent the money raised by the Tewksbury Girl Scout troops during the month of November for that purpose. January 1st is New Year's Day for many people in the world but not all. The Chinese, Jewish and even the U.S. Government's fiscal year do not begin on January 1st. But it's not important, it doesn't matter, and it should not concern anyone because "Yesterday is history, tomorrow is a mystery," so that leaves

"today, now, the present!" This is the day we should live, laugh and enjoy to its fullest. We may not have another chance to tell someone we love him or her. Tomorrow may be too late to help someone who needs us, so write that letter now, make that telephone call now, make that visit to someone who is lonely now. Personality winners: retired State Trooper Dan Delaney of Danvers; Jimmy Sullivan of Wilmington; Kim O'Neil, Pat Kilty, Bernard A. Smith, Alan Coffin, Lawrence C. Allen and Robert Donovan, all of Stoneham. Also, Tony Angelucci of Russell Farm, Woburn; Frank Escobito, Winchester; Frank Tuttle, Wilmington; Ed Sargeant, Tewksbury; Marty Dowgert, Ira Sommerset, Bob Crowell, Richard Penta and Gerry Gately, MDC Detective of Woburn. Woodchips congratulates Geri Memory, activities director of the Somerset Nursing Home in Reading and Helena Stern, third grade teacher at the Batchelder School in North Reading for organizing a very successful Christmas party for the nursing home residents. The wonderful young boys and girls of Helena Stern's third grade class sang carols and distributed gifts and cards that were made by them. The happiness shown on Mabe Blanchard's face in a photo in the N. Reading Transcript was worth a thousand words to me as she carefully opened a present made and presented to her by Jamie Boerboon. "God bless you, Jamie, and all in the third grade class." Here are more wonderful people who made many people's cares lighter and spirits brighter at Christmastide: Paul and Betty DeStefano, Frank Hughes, Mrs. Richard Dellovo, Mrs. Whitney Crawford, Mrs. Richard Brown, Rachel Greenstein, Lisa DeStafano, Stacie Bilowz, Suzy Milone, Paul M. Perry, all of N. Reading. Also, Triana Blowers, Karen Snyder, Cheryl Hartford, Lore Wheeler, Cathy Hersom, Michael Lombard, Jeff Murphy, Joe Linehan, Larz Neilson, all of Wilmington. The Reading Rotarians, Robert Skelley, Stoneham, and full membership of the Woburn Elks for being so generous to the special needs children of the area. Woodchips loves you one and all.

New book

"Take Her Deep!"

The publication of a new book, "Take Her Deep! A Submarine Against Japan in World War II," by Admiral I.J. (Pete) Galantin, has brought back some vivid personal memories to a North Reading resident, John P. O'Connell, of 171 North Street.

O'Connell was a crew member aboard the USS Halibut when on November 14, 1944, the submarine was pinned beneath the surface of the Luzon Strait by Japanese air and naval units and subjected to the most severe depth charging ever endured by an American sub whose crew lived to tell about it.

Admiral Galantin, the Halibut's wartime skipper, tells in his book, published by Algonquin Books of Chapel Hill, the story of the ordeal that he and his shipmates experienced. The book was recently made a selection of the Military Book Club.

The Halibut had fired her torpedoes at a Japanese convoy off the Philippine coast and scored a hit on a freighter when a sudden aerial attack sent her diving for safety. Repeated depth charge explosions made it clear that her position, 325 feet beneath the surface, had been located by enemy sonar.

Attempting to creep away, the American submarine was driven a hundred feet further down by the impact of an enormous explosion. Pipes and fittings broke loose, light bulbs were shattered, water from myriad leaks spurted into the interior of the hull, propeller shafts and screws were bent, depth gauges were knocked out, and escaping air from steel flasks raised the air pressure so high that the forward compartment doors could not be opened.

Even more menacingly, a pungent odor emanating from the battery compartment indicated that sea water might have reached the main storage batteries and was producing deadly chlorine gas.

Helplessly awaiting a fatal knockout punch from the enemy, the crew worked desperately to make such repairs as they could. At length they were able to edge slowly away toward open water. Not until darkness came, however, was the Halibut at last able to maneuver beyond sonar range of the enemy. Finally the air pressure was equalized, crewmen trapped in the forward compartment were exuricated, and the badly mauled submarine could ascend to the surface and open her hatches to the night air. The pungent smell turned out not to be chlorine gas after all.

Ultimately the crippled submarine made contact with another American undersea craft and was escorted to Saipan, where it was found that the ferocious beating she had absorbed had buckled a heavy bulkhead and dished in the pressure hull a full two inches between its circular frames. One depth charge had obviously landed right on a four-inch deck gun, splitting the bronze breech, springing apart the trunnions, and severely denting the hull. Had the gun not been there and the charge struck the hull itself, it would surely have opened up.

The Halibut was ordered back to Pearl Harbor, pronounced unfit for further combat duty, and made her way to California. Everyone aboard was awarded the Navy Unit Commendation Medal for heroic performance of duty.

Galantin himself later rose to four-star admiral rank, and was Chief of Naval Material before his retirement in 1970.

Colonial Chorus auditions

READING — The Colonial Chorus Players of Reading has announced open auditions for its spring production of Broadway's hit musical, "42nd Street," on Sunday, Jan. 31, and Monday Feb. 1.

Auditions will begin each night at 7 p.m. and will be held at the Old Hose House, 1249 Main St., Reading.

A show within a show, "42nd Street" chronicles the comeback of a once-successful Broadway director, an aging star's attempt to remain in the spotlight, and a young chorus girl's first big break. A large dance chorus is needed, but many non-dancing roles are also available.

Auditionees should wear comfortable clothing and should come prepared to sing, dance, and read for a variety of parts. Piano accompaniment will be provided.

"42nd Street" will be directed and choreographed by Jackie VanHorn of Wakefield, who is well known to Reading audiences as both a talented performer (having most recently played the title role in "Mame") and as a highly creative choreographer.

Music direction will be done by Connie Richards Reuning of North Reading. Although relatively new to the Chorus, Reuning is both an accomplished musician and an experienced teacher/director.

Dorothy Westwater of Stoneham will produce.

For a perusal script or further information, she may be contacted at 438-9664 (after 5 p.m.).

Handel & Haydn add jazz

JARRETT PLAYS MOZART WITH H & H

Pianist Keith Jarrett will join conductor Christopher Hogwood and the Handel and Haydn Society for a concert at Boston's Symphony Hall on Friday, January 15 at 8 p.m. and Sunday, January 17 at 3 p.m.

Jarrett will be playing Mozart's Piano Concerto No. 21 in C (KV 467), a work made popular by the 1960s movie "Elvira Madigan." Jarrett has selected the cadenzas written by pianist Paul Badura-Skoda for these performances of the concerto. In addition to the Mozart, Jarrett will perform a solo piano improvisation. The program for the concerts will also include Haydn's Symphony No. 4 in D and Prokofiev's Symphony No. 1 in D: "Classical Symphony."

Keith Jarrett achieved fame during the early 1970s when his first solo album, "Facing You," was released. Since then Jarrett has received popular and critical recognition for his keyboard improvisations, his performances in jazz ensembles such as the Charles Lloyd Quartet and the American Quartet, and his contemporary chamber music and orchestral compositions.

Tickets for the "Jarrett Plays

Mozart" concert are $12-$32 and are available through Teletron at 720-3434 or 1-800-382-8080. Tickets can also be purchased at the Handel & Haydn Society Box Office at 295 Huntington Avenue, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday-Friday. Student/senior rush seats are available one hour before each performance but are limited to availability. For additional information call (617) 266-3605.
